Villagers Reoccupy Homes As Forest Fire Moves Off

Corbin, B.C., Evacuated During Danger, Once More Houses Its People

Fire Swings Away to Northeast; Concern Voiced To-day for Safety of Homes in McGillivray and Crow's Nest Districts

Canadian Press
Fernie, B.C., Aug. 26.—Marked by the scorching received in the last forty-eight hours, the main part of the mining town of Corbin, east of here, near the Alberta border, to-day was in large part relieved from the forest fire peril which had threatened its destruction. But all danger was not gone and fighters continued their battle to prevent further encroachments which might come with renewed wind.

The people of the smoke blackened town were returning to their homes, the women and children moving from their refuge outside the danger zone. The mine is expected to resume work to-morrow if there is no serious development.

RAILWAY BLOCKED
The railway line between Corbin and McGillivray is blocked and an important bridge is threatened. The highway is exceedingly dangerous and has been closed to public traffic.

Yesterday evening some anxiety was caused in Fernie itself when flames flanked it on the west and east. Seven miles to westward fires were raging on Mount Fernie and along Iron Creek, a tributary of Lizard Creek, the location of the fire which a week ago caused some alarm here. It traveled back toward this city, but was far up on the mountain side.

The more serious fire started along the Morrissey, Fernie and Michel Railway. (Concluded on Page 2)

RURAL SAANICH TO HAVE FIRST JUNIOR HIGH

Keating Residents Told of Important New Phase of Saanich Education System Grades Seven, Eight and Nine From Three Schools to Be Merged

Unaware that closure of one of the two rooms at Keating graded school was a result of creation in Ward Six of the first junior high school in Saanich, a large delegation of parents of Keating district yesterday evening waited on the Saanich School Board and aired vigorous protests. The closure had been a result of the erection of the new Keating high school and transfer to and from Keating, Saanichton and West Saanich schools.

The delegation was informed that the junior high school would merge grades 7, 8 and 9, and would involve problems natural to an important innovation, but northern Saanich with its three tributary rural schools, was unusually suited to such a project.

Chairman Hobbs assured the delegation that, in a very few years, residents in Ward Six would be proud of (Concluded on Page 2)

NO MORE DELAY IN WHEAT SHIPMENTS TO WAIT FOR BONUS

Winnipeg, Aug. 26.—Farmers are assured of the five-cent-a-bush bonus now being made by the Board of Grain Commissioners, E. B. Ramsay, chairman of the board, stated here to-day.

Mr. Ramsay's attention had been drawn to a suggestion that farmers who had threatened wheat were withholding it from the market because the machinery for the distribution of the bonus had not yet been perfected.

Means would be devised to insure all wheat already delivered would receive the bonus, Mr. Ramsay stated. The various elevator operators will be able to issue the bonus certificates by going back through the grain tickets registered in the elevators.

Drawing up regulations and the printing of bonus certificates and other documents connecting with the issuing of the bonus had been a large task, Mr. Ramsay pointed out. It was anticipated, however, that these forms would be distributed to elevator companies and others early next week after which there would be no difficulty.

Vast Throngs In Tokio Greet The Lindberghs

Men, Women and Children Struggle With Police to See Fliers From U.S.

Japanese Minister of Navy Welcomes Vacationists as Peace Messengers

Associated Press
Tokio Aug. 26.—Men, women and children fought the police here to-day in a wild scramble to get a glimpse of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. The famous couple entered Tokio by train this evening after landing at the Kasumigaura naval base, fifty miles from the capital, the official terminus of their 17,132-mile flight from New York by way of northern Canada and Alaska.

At the Ueno station the Lindberghs encountered probably the most dense crowd in their experience. Several times while the fliers and their official party were being seated in limousines the crowd became unmanageable and for a time it looked as though the Lindbergh automobile would be overturned. The police were taxed to the utmost to keep the crowd away.

Completing the last lap of their long flight, the Lindberghs arrived at Kasumigaura at 2:00 p.m. (9:00 yesterday evening Victoria time), after a 618-mile flight from Remora. They were received by Admiral Abo, Minister of the Navy; W. Cameron Forbes, United States ambassador, and other notables while a crowd sent up a ringing chorus of cheers and "banzais."

PEACE MESSENGERS
Admiral Abo, in voicing the initial welcome, praised both the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh for their flight across the Pacific and hailed them as messengers.

Veterans of Ontario Are In Convention

Oshawa, Ont., Aug. 26.—With a civic address of welcome by Mayor Marks and the introduction of civic dignitaries and representative citizens, the fifth annual convention of the Ontario command of the Canadian Legion was officially opened here to-day.

Brig-General Alex Ross of Saskatchewan, Dominion first vice-president of the Legion, delivered a stirring message to the delegates. He urged on them the necessity of building up their organization to its maximum strength.

General Ross referred in glowing terms to the work of Earl Jellicoe on behalf of the service men of the Empire. A man who in his seventy-second year, after having served his country all his life, was still working night and day in the interests of his service, should be an example to all members of the Canadian Legion, said General Ross.

FRENCH-SOVIET TREATIES PLANNED

Paris, Aug. 26.—The French Foreign Office to-day said negotiations for a treaty of non-aggression and conciliation between France and Soviet Russia would be reopened in Paris in October.

The discussions will be simultaneous with negotiations for a commercial treaty. Both are expected to be concluded within a few months.

French industry has urged the government to undertake an agreement which would make possible trade with Germany, and Russia is unwilling to conclude a commercial treaty unless there is a non-aggression and conciliation pact at the same time.

RUSSIA'S LEADERS IN "STATE" ATTIRE

It was a "state occasion," but the rough and ready attire of Soviet Russia was in striking contrast to the top hats and gold-braided uniforms worn at official ceremonies by statesmen of other nations. Ignoring the camera man, Maxim Gorky (right), Joseph Stalin (centre), the "Iron Man" of Russia, and A. S. Yenukidze (left), secretary of the Central Executive Committee of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, were photographed during a celebration attending International Red Day in Moscow. They reviewed a gigantic parade of physical culturists. The many citizens of Victoria who have read novels of Gorky's will be interested to observe his present style of headgear.

Members of New British Cabinet Agree On Plans To Solve Economic Crisis

MacDonald, Baldwin and Samuel Declare Ministry Will Complete Task as Speedily as Possible

Canadian Press
London, Aug. 26.—The new National Ministry, at its first session to-day, reached a complete agreement on methods of dealing with the nation's financial crisis. Premier MacDonald, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, and Sir Herbert Samuel, representing the Liberals, pledged themselves to complete their task swiftly and effectively.

COMMITTEE NAMED
The Prime Minister named a small committee of the cabinet leaders to handle the necessary economy legislation, and the cabinet prepared to rush it through Parliament.

Once more Mr. MacDonald pledged himself to the policy of "equal sacrifices by all," explaining he did so in view of the possibility his radio address yesterday evening had emphasized only one phase of his programme, that of a ten per cent reduction in the dole.

OPPOSED BY LABOR CONGRESS
Premier MacDonald emerged from his first cabinet meeting only to learn that organized labor, represented by the Trades Union Congress and the Parliamentary Labor Party, this afternoon had voted unanimous condemnation of the new administration and declared the intention to oppose it both in Parliament and throughout the country.

FOREST FIRE AT ALBERNI TURNS TOWARD TIMBER

Mine Buildings and Plant of Island Copper Co. Saved By Timely Rains

Big Bush Fire Drifting Towards Virgin Timber Along Alberni Canal

Special to The Times
Port Alberni, Aug. 26.—The mine buildings and machinery of the Island Copper Company Limited, fifteen miles down the Alberni Canal, have been saved from destruction by a large forest fire which broke out on Sunday afternoon south of the Canadian National Railway right of way. The fire came within 200 feet of the bunkhouses before a gale, with a change of wind this morning, relieved the danger and enabled the fire-fighters to gain temporary control.

The wind is again rising to-day, and is drifting the fire towards areas of big timber owned by the Alberni Lumber and Timber Company. District Fire Ranger E. B. Conway, of Nanaimo, arrived this morning, and left by launch to take over supervision of the fighting force.

Earl Jellicoe embraced the occasion to thank the women for the interest they had taken in Poppy Day and in the activities of the veterans generally. The admiral was guest of Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley at a private luncheon at noon.

GANDHI IS TO GO TO LONDON CONFERENCE

Mahatma Makes New Agreement With Earl Willingdon, Viceroy of India

Simla, India, Aug. 26.—Mahatma Gandhi has agreed to take part in the Second Round-Table Conference and will sail for England next Saturday. The announcement came after a talk he had with Earl Willingdon, Viceroy, this morning. The conversation was described as highly satisfactory and it was stated the conclusions would be issued in communiqué form. Gandhi was to leave at once for Bombay.

The Mahatma had previously said he would not attend the conference unless the Viceroy appointed an impartial arbitration board to hear his charges that duties had been used in collecting revenue taxes from peasants.

Now he has waived that demand, accepting the Viceroy's assurance the government will try in the future as it has tried in the past to observe every clause of the Delhi truce.

The Mahatma's decision means all the political groups in India will be represented at the London conference.

LATE EX-PREMIER HAMAGUCHI

REGISTRATION IN CITY WILL START SEPT. 1

Two Months Given to Registration of Household and Licensees

Registration of householders and licensees for the Municipal Voters List will this year be made during the months of September and October, commencing on September 1, it was announced to-day by F. M. Hunter, city clerk.

In previous years registration has been made only during the month of October, but by reason of changes made in the Municipal Elections Act at the last session of the Legislature, two months will be given over for this purpose in the future.

The registration is preliminary to the holding of the civic elections on December 10 next, with nominations closing on December 3.

Certain exemptions are allowed under the provisions of the act, it was pointed out by Mr. Hunter this morning, the exemptions being as follows:

All those who have seen military service and also those who have been registered as unfit for military service, who are exempt from both the $5 poll tax and the $2 road tax.

Persons owning property in an adjoining municipality, who are exempt from the $5 poll tax, but not the $2 road tax.

Persons of sixty years of age and over, who are exempt from both road and poll taxes providing their annual income is less than $700, but if over that yearly income are liable for the $5 poll tax.

The king received the Premier in his inognito rank of Prince Shukhraya, and Mr. Bennett lunched informally with the king and queen in the royal suite of the Banff Springs Hotel. The royal party made no other engagements for the day, resting after a highly successful, if arduous, fishing trip to the upper reaches of the Spray River yesterday.

HAMAGUCHI, FORMER PREMIER OF JAPAN, DIES

Statesman Wounded By T. Sagoya in 1930, Passes Away in Tokio

Tokio, Aug. 26.—Yuko Hamaguchi, former Premier of Japan, who won the appellation "Warrior for Peace" by his espousal of the London Naval Treaty despite the opposition of influential groups of extreme patriots and militarists, died here to-day. He was sixty-one years old.

Heading the government during the negotiation of the treaty, Hamaguchi succeeded in obtaining Japan's adherence to the naval treaty only at a strenuous fight which incurred the displeasure of the ultra patriots and advocates of a strong navy.

On November 14, 1930, after ratification of the treaty, Hamaguchi was shot and seriously wounded by Tameo Sagoya, twenty-three, who was described as having been patriotically misguided or mentally deranged.

FORCED TO RESIGN
While Hamaguchi recovered slowly, Baron Shigenobu, former Premier, acted as head of the government. Hamaguchi resumed his duties March 10, 1931, but he proved too strenuous and he submitted to two operations early in April. Subsequently he resigned and Reijiro Wakatsuki, the present Premier, succeeded him.

BOARD TO HEAR VICTORIA'S GRAIN RATE APPLICATION

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Aug. 26.—An export grain rate to Victoria, B.C., similar to that to Vancouver, is being requested of the Board of Railway Commissioners, and public hearing of the application will be held September 10. The transportation company involved is the Canadian Pacific Railway and the applicant is the city of Victoria, together with the Panama Pacific Grain Terminals.

The city asks for an order of the board directing the C.P.R. to fix and incorporate in its tariff of tolls an export grain rate to the terminal elevator in Victoria, and that this rate be the same as that to Vancouver and equal to the export grain rate to said elevator now incorporated in the special competitive tariff issued by the Canadian National Railway.

Judge Changes Sentence He Gave

Ashville, N.C., Aug. 26.—Judge M. V. Barnhill to-day changed the sentence of Luke Lee Jr., convicted yesterday of conspiracy to defraud the Central Bank and Trust Company, from a fine of $25,000, to two to six years in prison or a $25,000 fine, the prison sentence to be suspended on payment of the fine.

Lee, son of Colonel Luke Lee, of Nashville, Tenn., former United States senator, was convicted with his father and Wallace B. Davis, who was president of the Central Bank and Trust Company. The bank failed last fall. The change in the young Lee's sentence eliminated the necessity for the youth to post a bond to guarantee payment of the fine pending an appeal to the state supreme court from the conviction.

Magnesia Best For Your Indigestion

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisulurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisulurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisulurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use. (Advt.)

Farmers Cutting Operating Costs

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 26.—Faced with low prices for grain, inland Empire farmers are cutting overhead costs to the bone to profit on this year's crop, a survey revealed today. The net result, it was revealed, is lower production costs, but impaired efficiency. Although the harvest was started earlier, the crop is being moved more slowly. Many farmers, particularly those on irrigated lands, have virtually eliminated labor costs by using members of their families. One such farmer was found to be using one son to operate a tractor, another to bulk the wheat, a third and his sister to operate trucks, while he handled the combine and the header.

Canton Boycotts German Goods; Protest Is Made

Canadian Press Berlin, Aug. 26.—The German Foreign Office has protested to the Canton government in China against a reported boycott of German goods because of delivery of a German shipload of munitions to the Nanking government. The cargo consisted, it was explained, of three Swedish-owned airplanes and fifty-four cases of Czechoslovakian rifles, shipped aboard a German vessel bound for Canton. The Nanking government got wind of the shipment while it still was in Manila harbor and exerted pressure on the German shipowners to deliver the cargo at Shanghai. The shipowners protested to the Foreign Office, which refused to interfere, pointing out the German government disapproved of German ship lines carrying such freight, even if it originated in countries other than Germany.

The result is that Germany is facing a boycott in Canton because the German ship failed to deliver the munitions there.

Issued by Hon. R. W. Bruhn, provincial Minister of Public Works, the Dominion and the province will look after the single unemployed men and unemployed transients who entered the municipality after May 31, while the municipalities are to provide for unemployed married men and direct relief. This would impose a heavier burden upon the municipalities than the governments propose to assume.

This provision is not what the municipalities were led to expect. Most of them certainly assumed that the governments would bear the chief cost of providing employment. When Senator Robertson was here a few months ago he told plainly that some of the municipalities, with their limited sources of revenue, could not finance more than the cost of direct relief. The governments, on the other hand, have wider sources of revenue and are better able to bear the major part of the load. It is true Mr. Bruhn says the governments may share the cost with the municipalities of meeting the case of the unemployed married man. But this is too vague to be of use in the drawing up of any programme.

It has become increasingly clear that the problem would not have been as complex as it is now if the government at Ottawa had presented a concrete plan to Parliament at the beginning of the session instead of asking for a blank cheque at the end without giving the country any idea of how it would be expended. There ought to have been a series of conferences with the provinces and municipalities early in the year, as the Talmie government very properly advocated. If this had been done the prospect to-day would have been more promising. At least the uncertainty conveyed by Mr. Bruhn's letter would not have existed. Even Senator Robertson, Minister of Labor, was not sent out to the west to investigate conditions until Parliament had been in session for three months.

The point that must be impressed upon the governments is that the municipalities for the most part are not in a condition to bear more than the cost of looking after cases of relief within their corporate limits.

THE NEW MINISTRY

MR. MACDONALD'S EMERGENCY CABINET should satisfy a public which is anxiously waiting for definite and speedy action in the solution of Britain's serious economic and financial problems. It contains only ten members, which can not be called an unwieldy number, and nine other Ministers who will fill the less important posts. Labor is represented by Mr. MacDonald, Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury; Mr. Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Lord Sankey, Lord Chancellor; Mr. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions and Colonies. The Conservative members are: Mr. Baldwin, President of the Council; Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary for India; Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Minister of Health; Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, President of the Board of Trade. The two Liberals are: Sir Herbert Samuel, Home Secretary; Lord Reading, Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

It will be observed that a notable absentee from the roster is Mr. Lloyd George, whose ill health may be partly or wholly responsible for his omission. If he should regain his strength rapidly enough, and the circumstances should occasion it, Mr. MacDonald will call upon him. It has been suggested, however, that the former Premier would not feel at ease in a cabinet of which Mr. Baldwin was a member. There may or may not be ground for this contention. The press and public of Great Britain apparently are satisfied with the ministry as it stands, and present estimates indicate that it will command adequate support in Parliament to meet the attacks of that section of the Labor party which has chosen to break with the Prime Minister.

The Ministers who compose the working cabinet of ten are well known for the administrative capacity with which long experience in public life has equipped them. They are all safe men who are not likely to be stampeded by reactionary or radical elements. As the man with the cash box, Mr. Snowden is the right man in the right place. The mantle shed by Mr. Henderson should fit Lord Reading comfortably. As well as being a former Viceroy of India, he has represented his country in various capacities at Washington. As President of the Council, Mr. Baldwin will no doubt relieve the Prime Minister of some of the duties of House leadership, as Mr. Bonar Law did in the coalition regime of Mr. Lloyd George. The office of Home Secretary will not overtax the ability of Sir Herbert Samuel, while Mr. Neville Chamberlain as Minister of Health will be merely returning to an office he occupied in the last Baldwin government, an office, incidentally, for which he has special qualities. With such support, Mr. MacDonald will be much more at ease than he has been at any time in office as Prime Minister. His accomplishments in the field of foreign affairs, moreover, have enhanced his reputation and popularity in many capitals.

It is superfluous to say that the task confronting the new government is an extremely difficult one. But it is obvious that if the Prime Minister had taken any other course, a situation already dangerous would have gone from bad to worse, out of which complete social and economic upheaval might have developed. Apart from the steady effect the announcement of the appointment of this emergency cabinet has had upon domestic affairs, the reaction throughout the world has been most favorable, and all will wish Mr. MacDonald and his colleagues the best of luck in their undertaking.

THE DEMAND OF THE PRESS

THE TORONTO GLOBE HAS BEEN insisting upon the appointment of a royal commission to get at the bottom of the Beauharnois affair, and The Brantford Expositor compliments its contemporary upon the stand it has taken. It considers The Globe "has won the unstinted admiration of the people of Canada" for the fight it has put up.

A very large section of the Canadian press, of course, has taken part in the fight for a general house-cleaning in respect of campaign funds and their regulation by legislation in the future. The Globe has noted this and gives a partial list of the newspapers that share its views. Here are a few of the number:

Winnipeg Tribune.
Manitoba Free Press.
Brantford Expositor.
St. Catharines Standard.
Montreal Star.

St. Thomas Times-Journal.

The Brantford journal says in part: "The insistent and urgent demand expressed in the independent press for a judicial investigation of this regrettable scandal may fail, but the people of Canada have the assurance that the majority of the newspapers throughout the Dominion have, for the good of Canadian public life, insisted that the guilty parties should be relentlessly exposed." The next move is still Mr. Bennett's.

PECULIAR REASONING

ONE OF OUR CONTEMPORARIES which has never missed an opportunity of pounding the MacDonald government from afar for what it has called its Socialistic extravaganzas is delighted that Sir Austen Chamberlain is to be the new First Lord of the Admiralty. It says this choice will be hailed with satisfaction by all who have the best interests of the British Empire at heart, because while "he may not, in an emergency cabinet, have either scope or opportunity for filling up the gaps in the Royal Navy which have been developing during the past few years," he will at least "impress on the cabinet the desirability of reform in those methods which have neglected the replacements in ships which are permitted under the London Treaty."

This is curious reasoning. The first task of the new government is to devise ways and means of finding about $600,000,000 to balance the budget, and after it has done so it will have to apply itself to the consideration of the national debt, altogether amounting to over $4,000,000,000, and decide what it will do about it. It is not difficult to imagine, therefore, what would happen to any cabinet Minister who suggested the spending of money on more battleships at this time. What is likely to be presented to Parliament by the new government is a proposal for further substantial cuts in fighting equipment of all sorts.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

MUSSOLINI GOES ROYAL
The Winnipeg Tribune

When Mussolini says grandly "Politics—that's me," he revives many historical memories. "He recalls, first of all, that Louis of France who said 'L'Etat, c'est moi,' and in declaring himself to be the state laid down the foundations of that implacable structure that was afterwards to crush his royal line. But he recalls with even greater vividness the fate of Julius Caesar, who, with just such bombast, nerved his hand to the point of reaching for a crown—and grasped nothing but the sharp crown of death."

The Latins used to have an unpleasant way with those public men who grew too ambitious. Perhaps they have it yet.

It would be an unfortunate thing for Italy if all this arrogant pomposity should transform Mussolini from a wise and useful dictator into a royal and useless corpse.

WHEN A MAN OWES
The Rotarian

Nothing so paralyzes that part of a man that gets him ahead in the world as worry. And a few worries emulate the corn-borer more than the worry over money owed.

Debts are no disgrace, per se. Most of the business of the world is done on borrowed money and will continue to be, for credit is a basic principle of the prevailing economic system. Yet, emergencies do happen. And if the where-withal to repay money owed is not in sight, all is not lost.

Human nature is such that if the harried debtor goes to his creditor and explains honestly and frankly his situation, a way out usually will be found. Perhaps it will be the partial-payment route. Maybe it will be a deferment of all obligations. Anyway, the tension will have been eased, and all important self-respect restored.

DELETING RADIO ADVERTISING
Judge

"Friends of the radio audience: The Aunt Sally Superior Hosiery Company, sponsoring this programme for your enjoyment, does not believe that radio listeners want their concerts interrupted by long advertising announcements. Therefore, the makers of Aunt Sally Superior Hosiery will not delay this programme more than a few moments. They appreciate the fact that you are more interested in the next number than in the excellent qualities of Aunt Sally Superior Hosiery. And since the beginning of its weekly broadcasts the Aunt Sally Superior Hosiery Company has felt that in giving you an hour of music it is accomplishing more than by taking up your time telling you about Aunt Sally Superior Hosiery. If you will listen closely you will find that the Aunt Sally Superior Hosiery Company uses only seven words in its radio advertising announcement. And those words are: 'Aunt Sally Superior Hosiery Really is Superior.' The next selection by the Aunt Sally Superior Hosiery Company will be a selection of Victor Herbert favorites, played for you by the Aunt Sally Superior Hosiery Orchestra."

Loose Ends

Something strange happens in a pet shop—something curious happens across the line—and something worse is about to happen next winter.

H. T. W.

PERHAPS I AM only imagining things but it has seemed to me lately that my goldfish have been getting rather thin. They have a lean and hungry look and appear to think too much, which is dangerous to goldfish. So I went to a pet shop to-day to buy some food for them, thinking that it would be a welcome variety to their usual diet of mosquito larvae and frog-eggs. In front of the pet shop were two little boys and a little girl. They had their faces pressed up against the glass until their noses were quite flattened out and white, and they were watching a little white terrier in a cage. The white terrier seemed to be interested in them. He too, pressed his face up against the glass and attempted to lick their faces, but, unable to do so, he dashed up and down the cage, barking and wagging his stub of a tail in that fashion which makes the eagerness of a terrier pup more irresistible than the beauty of women.

THE CHILDREN held a whispered conference together outside the window, and then presently one of the boys came sidling into the shop, looking very much like a terrier pup who is not quite sure whether you are going to fondle or hit him. "How much," said he hopefully to the clerk, "is the price for the little white dog with the black spot on his eye?" "That's a thoroughbred wire-haired terrier," said the clerk, "and the price is $25." The little boy gave him one look, and then he looked at the clerk and then he rushed out of the store. "What a real wire-haired terrier who lives on short sticks thrown into the water and the unequalled adoration of two small boys and a small girl, he will be made into a boudoir decoration or a sleek and dog-like accessory to a limousine." Something ought to be done about this.

THE TERRIER whimpered and tried awfully hard to climb through the window, but as it was thick plate glass, he did not succeed. Probably some spinster lady of wealth will buy him, and then he will be a real wire-haired terrier who lives on short sticks thrown into the water and the unequalled adoration of two small boys and a small girl, he will be made into a boudoir decoration or a sleek and dog-like accessory to a limousine. Something ought to be done about this.

IF YOU are interested in contemplating the moving picture of civilization about you, contemplate for a brief moment some of the facts supplied by E. H. Lavine, veteran New York newspaperman, who has just written a book on the charming methods of politicians, gangsters and policemen in the lower strata of American life. Mr. Lavine records his conversation with a gangster who makes a profession of organizing trade unions. "Nutten to it, kid," said this amiable gangster. "Foist we give de workers the wire that we is comin' to make dem union guys. Den we ride to de gas joint, call all de help together and git them to sign de paper. We collect $5 from each man for his dues, gives him a union card, and he's a union guy."

"Don't they ever object?" Mr. Lavine asked innocently. "Well, we all has our gas in our hands and Louis sits in the back of the car wid the shoe-shoo, machine gun, pointin' at 'em. Honest, de boss can't fire 'em without seel' us foist. We collect a buck a week from de workers for de annual dues, and we split de bucks and bosses, who in their turn see that the union organizers are not molested."

MR. LEVINE also estimates that a murder occurs in the United States every thirty minutes and there are 135,000 murderers walking about free there. This must be interesting for Americans. They never know whether the new neighbors next door are in the habit of killing people or not. Next day gets 30 a week for fourteen hours. Inferior to computer coming over you think on these things.

AS THE only weather prophet on whom the public can rely (you recall that I predicted the cold winter of 1929-30, the cold winter of 1929-30 and the particularly cold winter of 1930-31, which did not occur), as the only reliable weather prophet in the country, or rather as the mouthpiece of that eminent authority Bill Stubbs, the wood man, I feel I must warn the public of what is ahead. Well, a hard winter is ahead. Mr. Stubbs had no doubt about it, and as Mr. Stubbs is in the wood business and the wood business was very disappointing last winter when it was mild, Mr. Stubbs rubs his great rough hands together and chews his walrus mustache with gusto as he makes this prediction. Also, and by a strange coincidence, he recommends that I buy an extra large quantity of wood to be safe.

I WANT YOU to understand, however, that Mr. Stubbs and I are not relying this year on that complicated combination of astronomy and mathematics which enabled us to predict three cold winters where experience recorded only three. We have other evidence this year. We have the evidence of nature herself. If you will examine the woods and fields about you you will see what I mean. Everywhere the trees and bushes are making enormous quantities of berries. Did you ever see so many red rose hips and holly berries? The mountain ash trees are almost breaking under the strain of their load of red fruit, and the little crimson globules of the cotoneasters and berberis are already turning color. That, says Mr. Stubbs, is a sure sign and is proved, through converse reasoning, by the fact that last year, when

BURN KIRK'S COAL

"DOES LAST LONGER"

The weather was mild, there were few berries of any kind. Nature, with a hard winter ahead, is making provision for the reproduction of her various species.

BUT MY proof that the winter will be cold is even more convincing than the reddening berries of the forest and garden. My proof is that the black goldfish which were hatched in my pond this year have all commenced to turn as red as can be. So I am going out now to saw some oak logs which have been lying about in my garden for several years.

CUT IN COST OF LIVING AIDS BRITISH PLANS

MacDonald Makes Radio Appeal to People to Support New Cabinet

London, Aug. 26.—In the radio address of yesterday, in which he asked all the people of Britain to co-operate with the new National Government in balancing next year's budget, Premier MacDonald, speaking of the state of the nation, said: "Will those who are listening to me remember this: That during the last two years the cost of living has been cut by 11½ per cent, so that if the unemployment benefits had been subject to this consideration—a consideration which not a few trade unions have deliberately arranged in the interests of their own people—had that been so, the unemployment benefit, automatically and without changing a hair's breadth of its value in maintaining the standards of life, could already have been reduced, without even a clamor or a fight, by 11½ per cent. The proposal to reduce these benefits, therefore, leaves the recipients 1½ per cent better off than they were in 1929."

There is one thing I hope you will all consider. "There are those who say one of the consequences of the world's industrial plight should be a lessening of the programmes devised to help national development, but in my view the final resource from which those programmes can be financed, whether from loans or from current revenues, is the credit of our national credit, and anything which jeopardizes that must be instantly and firmly dealt with."

GOVERNMENT OF INDIVIDUALS
It is not a coalition government. It is not a government which compels any party to change its principles, or to subordinate its individuality. I should like to see no part in that either. It is a government, as has been described, of individuals.

"It has been formed to do this work. If the work takes little time, the life that is finished, the work of the House of Commons and the general political situation will return to where they were last week and those who have taken risks will receive positive punishment or rewards. The election which will follow will not be fought by the government. There will be no coupons or hope, no illegitimate prejudices, but in the meantime I appeal to all the force I have to every one of you, rich and poor alike, employed and unemployed, to face as the people of this country the greatest danger, the difficulties, with hearts determined to overcome them and with a conscience ready to respond to whatever the call and necessity may be."

Colquitz, B.C. WALTER POSTER.

A SUGGESTION
To the Editor:—Considering that employing a number of residents is now before the government and municipalities, the question of making any amount contributed to as far as possible and bring some return appears to be paramount.

We in Saanich municipality are without sewerage, in many portions distant from the city of Victoria. In order to prevent epidemics we must not rely on what are called septic tanks and other conveniences that are not healthy.

It would mean taxation increase, and it would also mean making our homes more valuable, and add to the attractions of the large area that is now filling up with people desirous of living away from the business section of the neighboring city.

The installation of sewers would mean that those who would benefit thereby in Saanich municipality now have the opportunity of obtaining same at a less cost than formerly, and it could be arranged to refund by a tax on the property benefited. There is no getting away from the fact that the sewerage system is a necessity. If we cannot find sufficient means to let the city of Victoria connect us with their sewerage system, and charge, as they do for water, or at a rate to be agreed upon.

This would mean a return of the amount expended, and would benefit the property holder and contributor, as well as the unemployed. There is also the question of sidewalks, and that must come up when the two roads, the West and East Saanich roads are widened. The sidewalks along Burnside Road and other highways outside Victoria. It is not safe to walk on these highways at night. Widening the roads and omitting sidewalks means added expense in the near future.

We have 500 unemployed in Saanich, according to the census of unemployed recently taken. The provincial government could do no better than to arrange for the work mentioned, receiving in return a certain amount of the expenditure from the municipality, besides giving employment to many needy persons. Otherwise, the two municipalities might arrange for connecting to the existing sewerage systems of the larger municipality on a rental basis.

ROADWORK
To the Editor:—The Dominion Government's long-heralded scheme of relief for the unemployed has at last been published throughout the provinces and may in a word be summed up as "Roadwork."

With all industries more or less at a standstill and farming on the prairies in a precarious condition, this seems to be the most readily accessible form of labor that could be undertaken on a large scale, and as a temporary measure, presupposing this trade depression

WEST COAST ROAD.

To the Editor:—On the front page of The Times of the 24th inst. James H. Beatty, M.P.F., is quoted as saying: "The temporary cessation of work is due to bridge and logging operations." This is incorrect. There has been no road work done on the West Coast Road from Jordan River this year. Logging operations were ceased by the logging company last year. It would appear that the only excuse for this statement is the fact that a caterpillar steam shovel has dropped its bucket and is using a pair of logging tongs for picking up some logs from the trees felled to make this road, before the present government came into being. Eight men are now being employed for this purpose.

UNION VERSUS NATION
To the Editor:—Although the British Labor Government has for the second time passed into history, there is one angle of the situation that is not minus a little humor. For instance, J. H. Thomas is quoted in a Times dispatch as coming out of No. 10 Downing Street and saying that there is one angle of the situation that is not minus a little humor. For instance, J. H. Just to what extent the resigned labor ministers have wrecked their careers it is impossible to say for a time, but Mr. Henderson has totally wrecked his own career—for the sake of 50 cents per week. The Molders' Union, on which he is an official, numbers 40,000 at the outside, yet he has callosely deserted the nation in the gravest crisis in years, to gain the support of a handful of dues-paying members of his union. Civil Marriage Of Catholics Is Now 'Public Sin'

Vatican City, Aug. 26.—A civil marriage of Catholic couples either before or after a religious ceremony, is henceforth, a "public sin," the church ruled yesterday through the Congregation of the Council.

The church recognizes only the religious marriage, although until now the civil marriages were not included in the list of sins.

VICTORIA GIRL VIVIDLY TELLS OF A TYPHOON

Mrs. James W. Anderson, Formerly Sheila Gillespie, Writes of Experience

Recent Hongkong Typhoon "Exciting But Terrifying," She Says in Letter

A vivid description of a typhoon which hit Hongkong several weeks ago, and which she characterizes as "an exciting but terrifying experience," is given by Mrs. James W. Anderson of Hongkong, in a letter received by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Gillespie of "Leasowes," Fairfield Road, yesterday. The description is particularly interesting in view of the recent havoc wrought in China by the typhoon.

WARNING GIVEN

Mrs. Anderson, who was formerly Miss Sheila Gillespie, says, in part: "Last Saturday we had typhoon! They are frightfully exciting but pretty terrifying. We had lots of warning, however. The No. 1 to No. 9 typhoon signal was up for twenty-four hours before No. 10 (the last one signifying typhoon arrived), was hoisted. Previous to the typhoon there is a deadly calm over everything, a horrible feeling of suspense, and it is frightfully hot. That night the sunset was absolutely incredible. The sky was spotted with enormous clouds of every color, green, purple, orange, red and blackish-green—very weird and very sinister.

SHIPS SEEK SHELTER

"That night," the letter continues, "the wind started, slowly at first, but increasing in violence every hour and gusts of rain beat against the house. By morning the hillsides were a seething mass of blowing vegetation, heavy rain clouds hung low over the harbor and violent gusts of wind and rain hit the windows every few minutes. The harbor itself looked a nasty blue and was crowded with small motor boats, sampans, and junk, was in the typhoon shelters (big areas enclosed by strong breakwaters). All the ships, big and little, barges and ferries were moved out from the docks. The big liners were moored to enormous typhoon buoys in the harbor, smaller ships steamed to sheltered areas for comparative safety, and altogether preparation was made for the typhoon scheduled to hit Hongkong at noon."

HAD NARROW SQUEAK

"Andy (her husband, Dr. James W. Anderson) decided at breakfast that I'd better come below with him. He had to visit the hospital and he knew once down below he'd never have time to get home again before the typhoon struck. He had a couple of narrow squeaks driving to the club. Roads were flooded as debris of every kind choked the gutters, chair coolies had bumped their chairs, and we saw a couple of coolies clinging to lamp posts and afraid to let go in case the wind swept them into the big multi-lane (ditches). No cars, rickshaws and few people were to be seen as we finally reached the club.

WIND 136-MILE AN HOUR

"The club is right on the harbor," the letter continues, "just the street separating it and the waves were now crashing over the Praya (corresponds to Bund in other eastern towns). We couldn't see the other side of the harbor as the spray, rain and clouds blocked out everything. At 10 o'clock three guns fired at ten-second intervals and the typhoon was on us in full force.

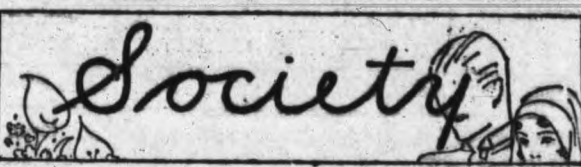

WAVES BREAK SEA WALL

"All kinds of debris was being hurled on to the Praya, and it was about six inches deep in sea water. The waves began to break down one of the cement walls by the pier, and it gave us some idea of the tremendous force of the elements when they really got going. It was an exciting and interesting experience, and although rather frightening, one forgets it in the awe on feels in seeing such a spectacle. The typhoon was over fairly quickly, and later in the afternoon we managed to get home. Of course, the typhoon rains were coming down in earnest by then. The garden looked very sad, and some lovely trees were badly damaged, but the house was all right."

JOAN BENNETT IN HOSPITAL

London, August 26.—The ghastly end of a woman bandit leader in China, who was sliced to pieces, is told in a remarkable book just published, which gives vivid glimpses of life in the most romantic civil service in the world—the Chinese Maritime Customs. The book is by L. C. Arlington, retired Commissioner of the Chinese Postal Service. It is called "Through the Dragon's Eyes."

Mr. Arlington reveals that some of the bandit gangs he came across when serving in lonely frontier stations or customs posts were led by women worse than the men under their command.

Some of the foreigners in the customs service, married Chinese women, the author points out that white women married to Chinese did not fare so pleasantly. "There were a number of white women married to Chinese round about Canton and these poor, misguided women could often be seen standing up to their thighs in the muddy rice-fields working like veritable slaves—which, of course, they were."

Some of the Chinese wives of white men appeared to be well able to control their husbands. One Chinese woman horsewhipped her English husband if he came home drunk. Another, married to a Frenchman, made her husband buy her a new umbrella every time they quarrelled. The author counted 478 umbrellas in that household.

Mr. Arlington admits that he found "a congenial and kindly home" in China. He describes the Chinese women as "exceedingly modest and refined," and says "it would be impossible to persuade a Chinese that a woman who used her clothes to show off her figure could possibly possess the least trace of modesty."

But of gray eyes are repulsive to Chinese, and also indicate that they do not like the smell of Europeans.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Morrow, who have been on a motoring trip to Banff, accompanied by Major and Mrs. Edwards returned on Sunday to their home at "Connemara," Island Highway. Major and Mrs. Edwards, who have been visiting in Victoria for the last two months, proceeded to their home in England.

Bids Farewell to Anglican Member

The Religious Education Council of Greater Victoria held a special meeting at the Y.W.C.A. recently to bid farewell to Rev. F. A. Ramsey of the Christ Church Cathedral staff, who will leave to take charge of St. Stephen's Anglican Church, in Vancouver West. Rev. Mr. Ramsey was Anglican representative and occupied the position of vice-president of the council during the past two years. On behalf of the members, Mrs. W. C. Wilkinson, secretary, expressed the appreciation of the council for the excellent services rendered by Mr. Ramsey, and Rev. Bruce Gray, president of the council, made a presentation of an attaché case.

Plans were made for the annual Religious Education Training School, to be held in October at Memorial Hall, Vancouver Street. Rev. J. H. Warr of Metropolitan United Church; John G. Simpson of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and Miss Gene McLeod of the Y.W.C.A. were appointed as a committee for promotion.

At the school held last spring 162 workers of the Victoria Sunday schools received instruction, this being one of the largest schools of its kind held in Western Canada.

The annual meeting of the council is scheduled for Friday, September 4, at the Young Women's Christian Association. Officers representative of the various denominations will be elected.

COSSACK'S FIRST WIFE SOLDIER

Gen. Semen Budionny of Soviet Fought Side By Side With Her

Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 26.—The Soviet people's craving for a national military hero finds an outlet in General Semen Mikhailovich Budionny, Cossack with long moustaches, whose first wife fought side by side with him.

General Budionny's moustaches make him easily recognizable. He has big black eyes and a smile lingers on his face when he is speaking. His figure is not of particularly heroic proportion, being a little stocky and inclined toward stoutness, but he is well built and carries himself like a soldier.

In conversation his manner is polite and every now and then he breaks into a fit of laughter. He is noted for his anecdotes of army life, especially after he has drunk the health of his companions as a part of his daily routine.

Budionny had his tragedy. He once was married to a woman no less a soldier than himself. In spite of the fact she was the mother of two children, she took part in battle side by side with her husband. She could ride a horse better than many of her mates of the other sex. She was an expert rifle woman.

One day when all their battles were over and more peaceful days had come, the soldier-wife was cleaning her rifle and shot herself.

Budionny married again, but not to a woman soldier. He said he would never again wed a woman who used firearms. His second wife is a well known actress in the main theatre of Moscow.

Budionny has been well rewarded for his services to the revolution. On his breast he carries four decorations of the order of the Red Star. Bruch, a city, which the famous general conquered after a bloody battle with the Whites, has been renamed Budionny.

He is an active figure in Soviet affairs, acting as a popular agitator. Born in 1883 in a poor peasant family, he grew up in poverty without any kind of schooling. He fought in the Russo-Japanese war as a private and during the World War as a petty officer.

The revolution brought the obscure soldier to high rank. To-day the people begin to look on him as their national hero.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By Frank M. Harris

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies, and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

BABY'S APPETITE SHOULD, IN MEASURE, DICTATE AMOUNTS OF FORMULA

When the baby receives his nourishment from the breast, the mother is unaware of the amount he imbibes at each feeding. He may nurse ten minutes, five minutes, or fifteen minutes, and she allows him to satisfy himself, providing it doesn't take too long.

If she is curious about the amount he gets, she may weigh him before and after a nursing and discover, probably to her astonishment, that he gets various amounts during the day—more in the morning, and very likely a small quantity at the afternoon and bedtime feedings.

But this works differently with the bottle baby, who gets a measured amount, and whose mother disregards his need for more if he is already taking the proper formula for a baby of his age and weight.

BABY IS HUNGRY

"I am one of your interested readers and am coming to you with my problem," wrote Mrs. W. W. "My baby is now three months old, weighed seven and one-half pounds at birth, and now weighs twelve and one-half. He acts very much as if he were not getting enough to eat. He is big enough for a four-months-old child, but he wakens sometimes an hour before a feeding, and cries until he gets his bottle. I weaned him two weeks ago and he now gets twenty ounces of milk, fifteen ounces of water and six tablespoons of maltose. He also gets four ounces of fruit juices daily. Don't you think he should go without a night feeding now? I give him a five-ounce bottle at 10 o'clock, but he wakens again at 1 or 2 or 4 or 5 a.m. He seemed more satisfied while I nursed him, and slept from 10 until 3 a.m. without waking. I would also like to know if it is necessary to boil the milk? I mix the formula, put it in bottles, set the bottles in cold water and bring the water to a bubble. Then I set them in a cold place. This seems to be more "constipating."

But now that you have weaned him, give the baby enough milk to satisfy him. He weighs exactly what he should weigh — a five-pound gain in three months — but if he wakens so often and isn't satisfied the full four hours he needs more milk. Increase to twenty-one ounces, wait a day or two, add another ounce, etc., until he can take up to twenty-five ounces without trouble. He might be better satisfied with six ounces at a feeding, too. The maltose might be reduced to one and one-half ounces, which is enough.

Your present method of boiling the milk is faulty. Put milk in bottles, if you wish, but keep it in the water for fifteen to twenty minutes after it starts to boil, then cool rapidly in cold, running water before setting it in a cold place. Yes, boiled milk is safest and is constipating only because it is more digestible, there being less fermentation, which stirs up bowel activity. That is an asset, however. Fruit juices and maltose should counteract this constipating tendency.

To-morrow "When All Signs Point to Weaning, Heed Them."

WEDDING TO-DAY AT NANAIMO

Pretty Ceremony Unites Miss Annie Johnston and Mr. Wm. Gordon of Ladysmith

Nanaimo, Aug. 26.—Rev. W. R. Welch united in marriage to-day at 12.30 o'clock at the Halliburton Street United Church Miss Annie Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnston, Rossmore Avenue, Five Acres, and Mr. William Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon, Ladysmith. The altar was beautifully decorated for the occasion with gladioli of pastel shades, other summer blooms of the same hue and greenery.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in her wedding gown of white georgette with inserts of Chantilly lace at the waistline, the georgette falling into folds almost covering the white moire slippers which she wore, and showing points of Chantilly lace at the hem. Over her gown she wore a jacket of the same lace. Her bridal veil of sheer Venetian lace, with embroidered ends, was caught at the top of her head with a circlet of orange blossoms, falling gracefully over her shoulders. A shower bouquet of white heather and Ophelia roses, she completed her ensemble. Miss Laura Johnston, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a smart creation of pale green georgette, fashioned in the same lines as the bride's dress, over which she wore a short jacket in a darker shade of green. Her hat was of pale green silk mohair. The groom was supported by his brother, Thomas Gordon, of Ladysmith. During the signing of the register, Miss Nora Black sang "At Dawning," with Mr. R. T. Coveney presiding at the organ.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother, Mrs. Johnston, assisted in receiving the guests. The table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake and summer flowers. The toast to the happy couple was proposed by the Rev. Mr. Welch, which was replied to by the groom. The happy couple left on the afternoon boat for a motor trip to the Caribou country, and on their return will take up their residence on Newcastle Townsite.

NOTED AUTHOR DIES AT NICE

Late Frank Harris Had Chequered Career; Literary Iconoclast

Nice, France, Aug. 26.—Frank Harris, seventy-nine, noted author, died here early to-day of an attack of asthma. Harris died at his villa on the Rue de la Bufta in Nice at 5.30 a.m. His wife was at his bedside. Up to the time of his death he was working on a biography of George Bernard Shaw. The size of his estate was unknown, but it was believed to be very small. The funeral will take place Friday.

Frank Harris, picturesque traveler, poseur, raconteur, editor and author, wrote himself into comparative poverty and self-exile from the land of his adoption.

The author of "My Life and Loves," who was born, coincidentally enough for his romantic adventures, on St. Valentine's Day, revisited America only once after he had gone abroad in 1922 to write the frank revelations of his wandering career.

That visit was in the fall of 1928 and Harris was incognito for its ten weeks. Pressed for money—he was almost always in need of funds—he went to New York to solicit a series of sensational letters and perhaps to make a lecture tour. But on advice of a certain lawyer friend that he might become involved with the federal authorities over the smuggling of his banned "My Life and Loves," he went back to the Riviera.

BORN IN IRELAND

Running away to New York at the age of fifteen from Galway, Ireland, where he was born February 14, 1856 (some biographies say 1854), Frank Harris worked on the foundations of the Brooklyn bridge before he went west to become a cowboy and then a student at the University of Kansas.

He was admitted to the bar at Lawrence, Kans., in 1878, but abandoned his incipient law career two years later and returned to Europe for further education. There he met Carlyle, who turned whatever talents he had toward writing.

His last residence in the United States was during his editorship of Pearson's Magazine, which he sold in 1922 to go to Nice to write the confessions of his autobiography.

LITERARY ICONOCLAST

He already had made a reputation as a rebel, iconoclast and stormy petrel in Anglo-American literary circles. During the war his magazine was closely watched by the post office authorities, and at least one edition was denied the mailing privilege.

But creditors of all kinds kept him unhappy while in the United States until he finally retired to France. In his last years he had little left but the memories and gifts of a lifetime, immensely valuable to collectors.

The gaunt, haggard Irishman, egotistical, vain, opinionated, but withal loving, refused to part with any of those gifts of Emerson, Whitman, Thoreau, Hardy and other literary and artistic celebrities of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

Yet he wrote pen-portraits of the great for a literary periodical which paid him, apocryphically, $6 a thousand words. This man, who had been a friend of Oscar Wilde and George Bernard Shaw, admitted he had been financially ruined by the publication of "My Life and Loves," but he blamed the "dumbness of humanity" rather than himself for his poverty.

As a final irony, he is likely to be remembered as the author of that aly circulated "Life" rather than for his "Life of Oscar Wilde" and "The Man Shakespeare," which are, perhaps, his

Professionally Perfect Finger Waves at Home

New French Method. No stickiness, gumminess or white deposit on hair.

HERE'S a unique French discovery that makes it possible to finger wave your hair at home with professional results. The only way known, experts say, that is not gummy and sticky to use. That does not leave a white flaky deposit on hair and scalp. That is not affected by dampness or rain.

It is an exquisite liquid that's as easy to use as a tonic. That makes waving your own hair easier than it used to be using old-fashioned curls.

Full directions, carefully worked out by French hair dressers, come with every bottle. They show you exactly how to use it through wonderfully simplified charts.

Thus, you're assured of perfect results every time. Deep, natural finger waves no matter how straight your hair may be. Waves that often hold perfectly as long as two full weeks.

It is called Jo-eur Wave and is sold at all toilet counters. Economical to use—a month's supply costs only a few cents. Approved and tested by the Good Housekeeping Magazine Bureau.

I tell other Women about it

WHEN my first baby boy was born I was weak and run-down. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in one of your little books and saw what it had done for others.

Somerville Has Chance to Come Through in U.S. Amateur

Would Be One of Greatest Victories for Canadian Athletics

Five Veterans Will Hold Fort Against Youngsters in Tourney

Ernie Arthur and Robin Reed Perform Brilliantly at Columbus

VICTORIA members of British Columbia's golf team that participated in the recent Canadian amateur championship at Montreal are enthusiastic over the chances of Ross Somerville, newly crowned Canadian titleholder, in the approaching United States amateur championship at the Beverly Country Club in Chicago, August 31 to September 5. Somerville played phenomenal golf to win the Canadian crown and his showing at Montreal has made him one of the heavy favorites for the American championship.

What a boost for Canadian golf if Somerville could walk through the formidable field he will face in the American event. It would be one of the greatest victories in the history of Canadian athletics. The United States amateur is nothing to Somerville. He has made two or three unsuccessful attempts in the title but has always fallen by the wayside. However, if he can show the same form in the United States tournament as he did at Montreal, it will take a mighty fine golfer to beat him.

Somerville will be one of the youths seeking to lift the crown left vacant this year by the retirement from the amateur ranks of the peerless Bobby Jones. When the field is set off at Chicago there will be listed among the competitors only five men who wear the badge of ex-champion. They are Frances Oulmet, Jesse Guilford, Max Marston, Chick Evans and Harrison Johnston. The odds are overwhelmingly against one of these veterans, lifting the crown.

Oulmet was champion seventeen years ago. He has consistently kept up the fight while a new links generation has swept the scene. The records show Guilford, pal of Oulmet's, has not clicked in winning form since 1921. Soon after this came Jones to dominate the picture. Jim Elmer interrupted his reign in 1926, and Johnny Goodman blocked him out for Johnston in 1929, but in the seven years since 1929 Jones was the man to beat for amateur.

Now Jones has gone. Sweeter is away on business and Roy Elmer has come a "business man" golfer. The tournament this year is what might be called an "open amateur." What a chance for Somerville to fight his way in and grasp the crown. At Chicago will be seen such young stars as Somerville, Lawson Little, Charlie Seaver, Johnny Lehman, Gene Homans, Frank Delp and Johnny Shields, fighting it out for the championship against the five veterans mentioned previously. And even though there is always the chance of a dark horse springing into the picture.

Chances of the world middle-weight prize ring title coming to the Pacific Coast appear mighty rosy following the receiving yesterday of a letter from Ernie Arthur, French-Canadian grappler, who is along with two other Pacific Coast boys seeking the championship in the big tournament being staged at Columbus, Ohio. Arthur states that he and Robin Reed, Portland, a former Olympic games champion, have each engaged in twenty-one matches and have won every bout. And on top of this neither has lost a single fall.

Arthur is of the opinion that it will be a battle between him and Reed for the world title. If this is the case it would certainly like to be in a ring-side seat. This pair are two of the most evenly-matched grapplers to ever step into a local ring. They met here twice and on both occasions the match ended in a draw. Although Arthur is considerably older than Reed, the French-Canadian is mighty tough and will give the Portlander more than a run for his money.

In closing Arthur states that Des Anderson, classy Seattle grappler, is out of the tournament. Anderson got some tough breaks by being drawn against a number of the cleverest men in the competition in his first matches. The Seattle boy stood up well but was forced to pass from the ring early in the tournament.

Detroit Shot Wins Trap Championship

Vandalla, O. Aug. 26.—Karl Maust, Detroit, yesterday captured the North American clay target championship by outlasting a field of more than 500 in the feature event of the second day's programme of the thirty-second annual grand American handicap tournament.

The Detroit sniper gave a remarkable exhibition of shooting in a shoot-off with three other men. The quartette was tied at one on the 184th target of the shoot-off to take second place. Maust won third position, and Slaughter missed his fifth shot.

Ten Hits and Five Runs Off Art Webster in First Four Innings Gives Terminal League Nine 6-to-2 Victory in Second Game of Provincial Baseball Series; Jack Noble Relieves Injured Webster and Holds Home Batters in Check; Both Teams Strange Under Floodlights

Vancouver, Aug. 26.—Pounding the offerings of Art Webster for a total of ten hits and five runs in the first four innings, Begbie-Carters, Terminal League champions, tallied sufficient counters to stow away their game against Victoria Elks at Athletic Park yesterday evening and finally ran out winners by a 6 to 2 score. The result ties up the series, Victoria having won the first game on their own lot Saturday by a 9 to 8 count, and the teams are to meet again this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at Athletic Park in the third and deciding contest. The winner is to meet Fraser Cafe in the next round on dates to be set.

LARGE ENTRY FOR WOMEN'S C.N.R. SWIM

Forty-two Mermaids Will Take Cold Plunge in Lake Ontario Friday

Margaret Ravior and Ethel McGarry, Co-favorites; Ten-mile Grind

Toronto, Aug. 26.—Some forty-two mermaids anxiously scanned weather reports as they rested somewhat nervously in training camps upon the shores of Lake Ontario to-day. The women's ten-mile swimming championship, headline attraction at the opening of the Canadian National Exhibition here on Friday, finds the fair maid ready for the test, but not ready for the chilling blasts which blew out of the west to-day.

Staring Canada and United States, these two-score competitors have been training throughout the summer months in water which has been unusually warm for frigid Lake Ontario. The race this year promises one of the keenest struggles since the C.N.E. inaugurated the special swim for women in 1928.

Kirschmeyer Wins Bout With Kaplan

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 26.—Roland Kirschmeyer, 230-pound Oklahoman, won two out of three falls over Abe Kaplan, New York, 218 pounds, in the main event of the wrestling programme here yesterday evening. Kirschmeyer gained the first fall in the third round with a body press. Kaplan evened the count in the sixth with a series of handlocks and a body slam.

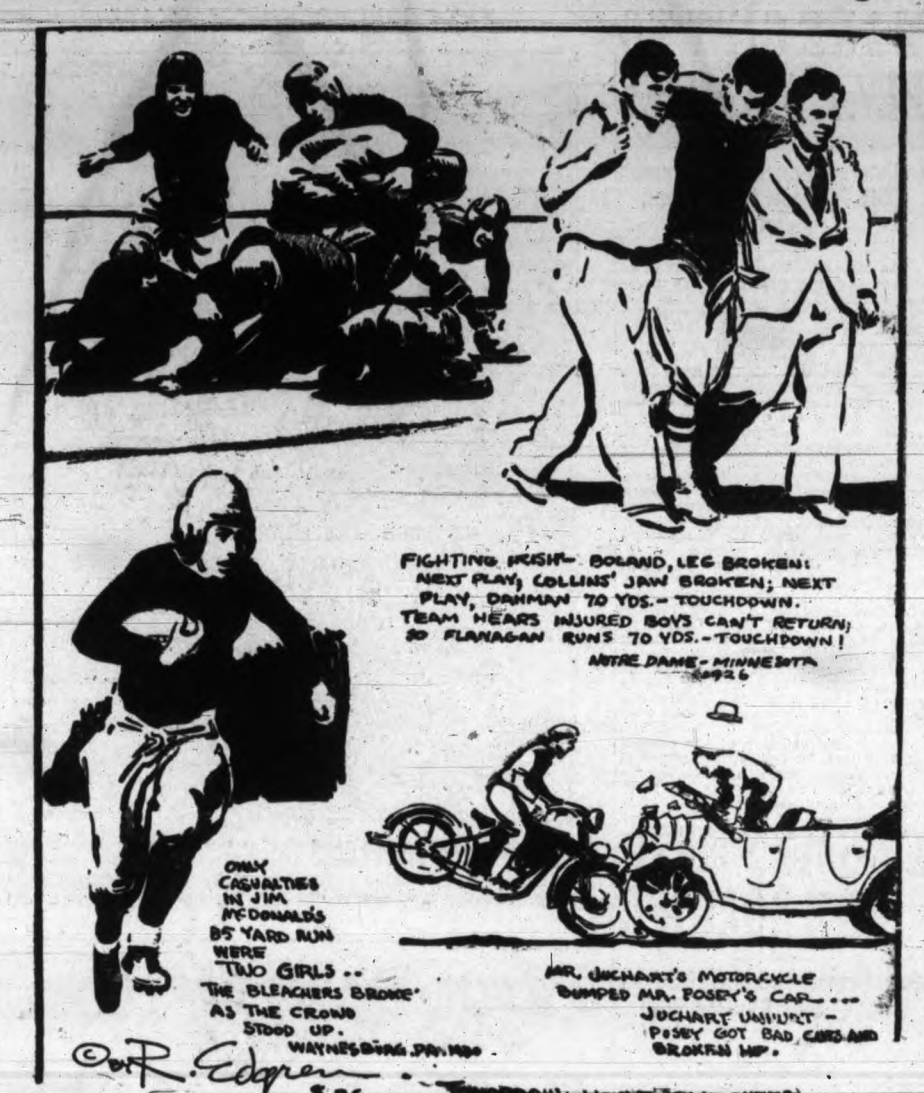

Kirschmeyer won the odd fall when he slipped on a scissor hold while Kaplan was debating with the referee. John Preberg, Seattle Swede, and Dan Koloff, Bulgarian, drew in five rounds, each gaining a fall. Each weighed 230 pounds.

Marvin Westenberg, Tacoma, 214-pounder, won over "Wild Bill" Donovan, San Francisco, 200-pounder, in the opener, gaining the lone fall in the first round.

In closing Arthur states that Des Anderson, classy Seattle grappler, is out of the tournament. Anderson got some tough breaks by being drawn against a number of the cleverest men in the competition in his first matches. The Seattle boy stood up well but was forced to pass from the ring early in the tournament.

CREWS NAMED FOR REGATTA ON LABOR DAY

All Regular Boats Split Up For Events; Canoe Races Will Add Interest

Regular crews of the J.B.A.A. have been rearranged for the Labor Day regatta to be held by the club at the Gorge. It was announced yesterday evening following the selection of oarsmen to compete in the meet.

No single crew has been left intact. In the 140-pound four, some of the boys who rowed two years ago will be seen back in the game after a considerable lay-off. Benny McMillan, Elmer Knight, J. Crane and R. Wratton will be facing a smart little crew stroked by F. Cole and including A. Jones, G. Scott and W. Stancil.

Northamptonshire To Retire From Cricket; J. C. White Has Quit

London, Aug. 26.—The resignation of J. C. White as captain of Somerset, and the likelihood that Northamptonshire will retire from the county championship series were important developments in English cricket to-day. White is resigning for business reasons, though he announces he hopes to play for his county occasionally. An international player, he was very successful as a bowler in Australia three years ago. Northampton has been hit by the depression and has suffered from decreased gate receipts this season.

Harry F. Sinclair Will Sell Stable

Famous U.S. Sportsman Will Retire From Racing Game; Sale on September 3

Sinclair Horses Recently Refused Overnight Entry; Zev Will Be Kept

Canadian Press
Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Aug. 26.—Whether Harry F. Sinclair's retirement from thoroughbred racing would be a permanent or a temporary affair was a matter of much conjecture to-day. Sinclair's Ranocosa Stable is to pass from the picture September 3, when the stable's twenty-five horses in training will be sold.

Friends of the millionaire oil man and sportsman say, however, that his green capped silks will be on the turf again next year and point to Sinclair's large breeding farm at Jobstown, N.J., where over 100 mares, yearlings and weanlings are quartered. Sinclair refused to discuss his future plans when he announced his retirement "because he was unable to give his stable proper attention," but his three great sires, Zev, Lucille and Bud Derner, "will not be sold."

Track Meets Latest Entertainment For Major League Fans

With Runaway Races Being Seen in Both American and National Baseball Leagues Players Are Putting on New Stunts to Entertain Cash Customers; Ben Chapman, Leading Base-stealer of the New York Yankees, Wins Special 100-yard Dash; Issues Challenge to All Players; Ruth and Arlett May Engage in Weight-throwing Event

Having pretty well settled the question of team supremacy in the two major leagues, the boys have hit upon a new scheme to maintain the interest of the fans. They are putting on track meets, and the possibilities are limitless.

When Ben Chapman, the New York Yankees' favorite speedster, outfooted Carl Reynolds of the Chicago White Sox in a special match race before yesterday's tilt at Chicago, something undoubtedly was started. From now on the customers perhaps will expect to see jumping pits and cinder paths as regular equipment in all well-regulated parks.

Chapman, seeking more sprinters to conquer, already has issued a defy to any player in the American League for a 100-yard match race, and they are talking of pitting him against the National League's speed champion as a feature of the approaching world series. If they can arrange that and, say, a shot-putting contest between Babe Ruth and Buzz Arlett, the fans will be assured some choice entertainment.

STOLE TWO BASES
After beating Reynolds by some four yards in their special dash, Chapman utilized his speed in the game that followed to steal his fiftieth and fifty-first bases of the year. The last American League to equal that mark was George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns, in 1922. He still, however, is far from Ty Cobb's 1915 record of ninety-six thefts.

The Yankees won, 8 to 0, behind Herb Pennock's six-hit pitching. It was the first shut-out credited to the McCarty men this season.

Eddie Rommel hurled the Philadelphia Athletics to a 4 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The Washington Senators, so far back now it scarcely matters, thumped the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 1. Rain prevented the scheduled bout between Cleveland and the Boston Red Sox.

Their sails all set for second place in the National League, the New York Giants helped matters along by trimming the Chicago Cubs twice, 5 to 3 and 7 to 1, stretching their lead over the Hornsby clan to five games. Carl Hubbell's five-hit pitching and Mel Ott's home run with two on featured the first Jim Chaplin, aged by the visitors cold in the second, Ralston Hemley's homer depriving him of a shut-out.

The Robins, likewise nursing second-place ambitions, divided a pair with the Pittsburgh Pirates. A four-run spurge off Watson Clark in the eighth inning gave the Pirates the opener, 5 to 3. Fred Heilmach squared matters by hitting them to three hits and winning the nightcap, 5 to 0. Babe Herman's home run with two on in the first and two in the second, and Jimmie Cincinatti and Philadelphia took turns applying the whitewash, the Reds winning the first, 8 to 0, behind Red Lucas's brilliant pitching, and the Phils taking the second, 1 to 0, as Jimmie E. Lott bested Young St. Johnson in a tight duel. Successive hits by McCurdy, Whitely and Mallon gave the Phils their winning run in the nightcap.

Old Socks Seibold held the Cardinals scoreless for eight innings, but they nicked him for one to tie the score in the ninth, then coasted to a 2 to 0, more in the tenth to defeat the Boston Braves, 4 to 1.

First "Dodo" At Banff Course Is Scored By Woman

Banff, Alta., Aug. 26.—To a woman golfer, Mrs. H. L. Sherman, New York City, goes the credit for the first hole-in-one on the famous Banff Springs golf course. Playing in company with her husband yesterday, Mrs. Sherman put an iron shot across the watery expanse of the 125-yard eighth hole, the devil's cauldron, which is paved with good golf intentions and golf balls. The cauldron, "fairway" is a solid stretch of water lying in a natural bowl from tee to green and the green is ringed on the sides and back with heavy forest and traps. Mrs. Sherman carries off by virtue of her singleton a silver trophy given by the Banff Springs Hotel for the first hole-in-one.

JOHNNY DAWSON WANTS TO PLAY WITH AMATEURS

Amateur Golf Star, Professionalized Through Business, Seeks Reinstatement

Oakland Newspaper Describes Chicago Player as a Martyr of Golfdom

Oakland, Cal., Aug. 26.—In a movement sponsoring the reinstatement of Johnny Dawson, Chicago, as an amateur golfer, the Oakland Tribune yesterday asked editorially:

"Must a man be penalized by the United States Golf Association because of the business in which he is engaged, when that business has nothing to do with his ability as a golfer?"

The Tribune declared "Dawson is old man's martyr. Because he is employed by a sporting goods store in Chicago, he has been requested not to file his entry for the amateur tournament. Yet Johnny was an employee of that store long before he came a golfer—and has become the scapegoat for the only thing that has kept him from the amateur ranks is his own time and effort during the hours which he was working for that company."

"When he became associated with the firm he was a mere cub. Now that he has become a star, the golf association has decided he is a professional, as long as he was poor enough to be a pickline for top ranking amateurs, as was entitled to be called an amateur. When, through efforts for which he received no remuneration, he became too tough for the amateurs he was classed a professional."

FORDS GO INTO PLAY-OFF LEAD

Defeat Taiyos 7 to 2 in First Game of Twilight Baseball League Pennant Series

Falling to show their usual form and allowing costly errors to creep into their play, Taiyos, smart Japanese ball nine in the Twilight League, dropped their play-off first game against the Fords at the Royal Athletic Park yesterday evening, by a score of 7 to 2.

"Blind" Finch, turning in a bright pitching performance for the Henries, fanned five and gave three walks in the five frames. M. Ashikawa, twirled well for the Nippons, but was given poor support. He whiffed nine and walked three.

The Fords' victory put them in front in the match for the pennant in their league. The automobile men took a four-run lead in the third and kept it front for the remainder of the tussle. They scored three more in the fourth, while the Taiyos were only able to push home two in the same inning.

The teams will meet in the second fixture to-morrow evening and will play a third game on Tuesday. If a fourth fixture is necessary, it will take place on Thursday.

Touring Golfers Are Welcomed Back Home

Morrison, Brynjolfson and Matson Guests of Honor at Uplands Club Banquet

Bob Morrison, Harold Brynjolfson, Victoria members of the B.C. golf team which participated in the recent Canadian amateur golf championship at Montreal, and Jack Matson, manager of the team, were formally welcomed back to Victoria yesterday evening, at a banquet tendered them by the Uplands Club in the clubhouse.

Captains and professionals of all the local clubs, along with the executive members of the Uplands, attended the affair. Fred Dillabough, Uplands captain, made an ideal chairman.

The Victoria players were given a rousing reception and welcomed back by D. A. Macdonald, president of the Uplands. The president opened his welcome by tendering his heartfelt congratulations to the boys for their splendid showing and to Jack Matson for the fine manner in which he handled the team. The showing of the B.C. squad had clearly demonstrated the east enjoyed no monopoly on good golfers. Mr. Macdonald told the gathering of how Uplands was encouraging its younger members and that a number of youngsters were coming ahead that would bear a lot of watching in a very short time. Following these remarks the health of the guests was drunk, followed by three rousing cheers and the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

Other speakers included: R. Morrison Sr., A. S. G. Musgrave, Oak Bay captain; J. H. McKee, R. H. E. Colwood; J. H. McKee, R. H. E. Colwood; J. H. McKee, R. H. E. Colwood.

During the evening a number of suggestions were put forth on how to improve golf in Victoria, and also how to keep it at its present high standard. The following subjects were talked over: More work in advancing the play of the juniors; regular inter-club team matches, limited to three of the top-notchers, including the professionals; sweepstakes matches and interclub matches, which would give all members a chance to compete, but on different times, and a city handicap tournament open to all recognized club members.

Not hot is the fight between Al Simmons of the Athletics and Babe Ruth of the Yanks for the American League batting leadership, that the official statistician had to add another digit to their figures to distinguish them to-day.

The Babe, as a result of two hits in three attempts against Chicago yesterday, pulled up within three one-thousandths point of Simmons, who was idle. Their respective percentages were .889 and .888. The Yanks' Giants made five hits in eight trips against the Cubs to boost his mark to .340 and plant himself only two points behind the National League pacesetter, Virgil Davis of the Phillies. Canadian grown wheat has won the championship at Chicago 15 out of 19 times—the world's record for quality

The RECORD SPEAKS for ITSELF

Quality tells, in a cigarette as well as in wheat. In fact, the record established and maintained by Turret Cigarettes has been made by quality alone. Their mildness and fragrance—and the satisfaction they give to smokers—are the natural results of the quality of the tobaccos used in their manufacture.

After all, nothing can replace good, honest tobacco; grown and ripened right out in the field under nature's own sunlight—nothing artificial about that—and the high quality is "inbred."

Pender Island

Browning Harbor, Aug. 26.—Major Boyer and guests visited Pender Island on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Hugh Hamilton has as her guest Mrs. Aster of Trail.

Maurice McGregor has returned to Victoria after a holiday with his mother at Sunny Slope.

Mrs. McPhee, of Nanaimo, held a beach party at the "Maples" on Thursday afternoon. Guests were Vic and Edna Hampton, Beatrice and May Brackett, Rose and Ray Brackett.

Mr. Sutherland and relatives returned on Thursday to their home in Chilliwack after a holiday at "The Knolls."

Gordon Tomlin, of Victoria, is the guest of Bruce MacGregor.

The coastguard cutter Malaspine anchored over Sunday in Browning Harbor.

The community picnic held recently at Hamilton's beach, under the combined auspices of the Farmers' Institute and Recreation Society, was well attended. Following lunch sports were held, including foot races, jumping and swimming. The greasy pole drew the largest entry list and most interest, but no one was successful in reaching the end. Afternoon tea was served at 4 o'clock, and a hearty vote of thanks was extended to Alexander Hamilton for the use of his beautiful beach and grounds. When returning from the picnic cars owned by G. Boyer and P. H. Grimmer collided with considerable damage to the latter. No one was injured beyond a few scratches.

Mr. and Mrs. Sparling and Mrs. Kilbank and family, of Vancouver, are camping at "The Maples," Browning Harbor.

Mrs. Tonks, Miss Kion and Alfred and Stanley Tonks, of Vancouver, are occupying a cottage at Welcome Bay. Roy Adams is home for a month's holiday.

Miss Maude Dickinson, of Vancouver, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. Walton Bowerman and two children are spending a few days this week at the fair in Vancouver.

WHY EAT ROMAN MEAL IN SUMMER?

Why? For the same reason that one eats fruit. Both are alkaline and alkalize the blood, which keeps one fit on hottest days.

Roman Meal is the only alkaline grain food, because it is a quarter flax-oil. It also moves the bowels freely, preventing absorption of bowel poisons that depress and weaken on hot days. It need not be eaten hot. It is uncooked, as per recipe on package, all the year round, which accounts for my youthful strength and endurance at seventy-three. It can also be served as icy-cold Brose-O, etc. (recipe on package), or as cold porridge with preserved or jellied fruit and cream or "cream substitute." Hot or cold, it is alkaline and pepa one up on hot days. Write for free sample and for free booklet, "HOW TO KEEP WELL," to ROBT. G. JACKSON, M.D., 507 Vine Ave., Toronto 9, Ont. (Adv.)

Consumer Buying Gains In Volume; Savings Up

While retail buying in July was 8 per cent below July, 1930 in dollars, it was actually 9 1/2 per cent larger in tonnage, when allowance is made for dollar, according to the current Consumer Index of Investors Syndicate.

With a decrease of only 1.3 per cent from June purchasing, the upward tendency strongly resisted the seasonal downward trend, the index shows. This is attributed to the gradual return of the consumer to the market to replace necessities, a condition which features the final stages of any prolonged depression and "buyers strike," the analysis points out.

Though the syndicate's index shows that the average consumer's income from investments is now 5.6 per cent less than at the same time last year, he can actually buy 12.3 per cent more goods with it this year. He continues to hold back, however, on automobile buying and home building, the figures show.

Average consumer returns show the following disposition of funds:

Income:	Month	Last
Wages	-5.4	-22.1
Investment income	-5.6	-5.6
Outgo:
Retail buying	-4.2	-8.0
Cost of living	-1.6	-11.5
Auto buying	-13.0	-19.5
Home building	-13.2	-24.3
Progress:
Security investments	-10.0	-99.3
Insurance	-9.9	-17.1
Savings	+1.9	+11.7

C.P.R. EARNINGS OFF

Montreal, August 25.—Traffic Earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the week ending August 21 decreased $1,115,000 over the corresponding period last year. The figures for the week are $2,546,000, as compared with $3,661,000 for the same week last year.

TOLMIE TELLS ROAD CRITICS ABOUT ROUTES

Designation of Transcanada Highway Was Dominion Question, He Says

The needs of British Columbia could not adequately be met by the recognition of only one Transcanada highway, and present conditions in the province justify the undertaking of at least three separate transprovincial routes, Premier Tolmie announced yesterday in answer to objections from points in the southern interior as to the route selected.

The designation of the route, he said, was a matter that in no sense could admit of purely local consideration but was one of which of necessity had to be regarded as a Dominion question. Recalling the conference with Hon. H. H. Stevens, Premier Tolmie remarks:

"A most sympathetic understanding of the situation was evinced by the Federal Cabinet, and the province was fortunate in securing recognition of a south and of a north Transprovincial Highway, with a Transcanada Highway passing from Victoria to Nanaimo, and from Vancouver through Hope, Ashcroft, Kamloops, Revelstoke and around the Big Bend, joining up with the Dominion Government's highway system in the federal parks of the Rocky Mountains."

JOINS ALBERTA ROAD

There were sound reasons for the designation of this route, which joins up directly with the route already designated by Alberta and which passes diagonally through the southern half of British Columbia along the line of the old Cariboo Road, extending from Vancouver to Ashcroft as constructed in pre-federal days. At the eastern end of this route a new highway has been in course of construction for some years between Beaverbrook and Revelstoke, a joint undertaking being carried out by agreement between the Dominion and provincial governments. The relief of the unemployed, which the work on this highway will afford, can only in a small measure meet British Columbia's pressing needs, and it is intended with federal aid to complete the Southern Transprovincial Highway through the Hope Mountains to Princeton, the construction of which was commenced in the days of the McBride administration, continuing through Roseland, Trail, Creston, Cranbrook, Fernie and the Crow's Nest. This road will be in every respect the equal of the Transcanada Highway."

Langford

Langford players were: The Misses Stella and Eileen Higgs, Margaret Smedley, Pamela Bennett, Rodney Bayles, Allan and Stanley Jackson, Henry Bennett, Tom Dixon, Oswald and Claude Higgs, Rex Jackson, Hamish and John Bullen. MASSED BANDS PLAY IN PARK

Canadian Scottish and Gizeh Temple Bands to Give Fine Programme at Beacon Hill

The bands of the Canadian Scottish Regiment and Gizeh Temple Shrine will combine for to-night's concert in Beacon Hill Park, commencing at 8 o'clock. An excellent programme has been arranged by Bandmaster James M. Miller, who is the conductor of both bands. The opening number will be the familiar march, "Washington Glee." The second number is a selection of "Hawaiian Songs," arranged by Lake. This will be followed by the "Ballad Music" and "Soldiers' March," from "William Tell." "Comedie d'Amour," a waltz, and "O Solo Mio," Neapolitan serenade, will be played as "a" and "b" numbers.

The overture chosen for this concert is "William Tell," by Rossini. At the last concert given in Beacon Hill Park by the Shrine band a number appearing on the programme entitled "Old Time Favorites," was so well received that it has been requested many times since. It gives Bandmaster Miller and the members of both bands pleasure to include this popular number in this evening's programme featuring a fifty-piece band.

The characteristic intermezzo "In a Monastery Garden," will be the seventh number, followed by "Ballad Egyptian," by Luigini. The closing number is the selection "Reminiscences of Scotland," selected and arranged by Fred Godfrey, this number closing with "Auld Lang Syne," is very appropriate, as this evening's concert will most likely be the final Wednesday evening concert for this season.

Daily Health Service

Complete Knowledge Of Vitamins Not Yet Totally Classified

Dangerous To Take Excessive Amounts Of Special Foods To Correct Any General Condition

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

WHAT IS KNOWN AS THE ANTI-SCURVITIC vitamin is not really a substance to be used for all forms of inflammation of the nerves. The vitamin that prevents scurvy unquestionably has other functions, and vitamin A, which was called the antophthalmic vitamin, has unquestionably other services for the body. Another attempt to classify vitamins is based on the fact that they are soluble in fat or in water. Hence vitamins A and D have been known as fat soluble A and D, and vitamin C is known as water soluble C.

The substance formerly known as vitamin B has been found in two different vitamins which are now known as vitamin B1 and vitamin B2. The letter F has been dropped because of confusion, because several different factors have been named F. No doubt, when chemistry has progressed sufficiently in its study of these substances their names will be changed and the single letter designations, which must inevitably result in confusion, will be dropped.

Whenever a new discovery is made in medicine its commercial exploitation promptly follows. We are given as a national mass interest and to adopt- ing promptly any new method of amusement, any new food product, or any new scientific discovery. Everyone can remember the temporary craze for mah jong, cross-country walking, shaking machines for passive exercises, and ultraviolet rays. Now the furore of interest and exploitation is associated with vitamins.

Practically all natural food sub- stances contain vitamins of one type or another, and the average American diet of food substances takes care of most of the vitamin needs of the population. There is no reason why most people should drink a quart of orange juice daily, no reason why they should take excessive quantities of cod liver oil or cod liver oil tablets; no reason why they should expose themselves to sunbaths to the point of burning. Vitamin deficiency in any single case can only be discovered in a careful study of the diet and health of the individual. A haphazard taking of great quantities of vitamin-containing foods with the hope of improving health generally may injure the very health that is trying to be conserved.

Most of what we know about the vitamins has been learned from feeding experiments on animals. An animal is fed a diet deficient in certain vitamins. It develops certain disease conditions. The substance in the diet supplied and the animal recovers. Diets deficient in many ways. To-day throughout the world there are hundreds of nutrition laboratories in which foods, fish and animals. Indeed, there are many nutrition laboratories in which young men volunteer their services in such feeding experiments for the good that may accrue to mankind.

CHATTERTON AT THE DOMINION IN NEW DRAMA

In "The Magnificent Lie" New Male Player Is Found For Brilliant Star

When "The Magnificent Lie," Ruth Chatterton's latest starring picture, is shown around the country, audiences in many cities will recognize in the leading male role a one-time favorite stock player. He is Ralph Bellamy, young actor who has toured the country in stock before getting the break on the New York stage which has led him to the door of moving picture fame.

In "The Magnificent Lie," which is now showing at the Dominion Theatre, young Bellamy makes his screen bow, playing the role of a sincere young lumberman, who is duped by Miss Chatterton into believing she is a famous French musical comedy star. Miss Chatterton undertakes the deception on a laughing wager, but the man's sin grows up between them—is put to a severe test.

"The Magnificent Lie" is another of the distinguished pictures Miss Chatterton has been contributing to the screen. The last includes "Sarah and Son," "Anybody's Woman," "The Right to Love" and "Unfaithful." The story was adapted from the novel, "Laurels and the Lady," by Leonard Merrick.

A screen vamp, to be convincing, must have plenty of allure. Hamilton MacFadden, co-director with Chandler Sprague of the Fox production, "The Mad Moment," closing to-day at the Capitol Theatre, knew this when he cast Mary Moran as the dark-eyed Basque beauty who dances so alluringly in the picture.

Mary is quite used to creating con- sideration among the male cast. In fact, she does it with such assurance she usually has every woman in the audience hoping her husband or sweetie will never meet such a girl in real life.

"The Mad Moment," in which Mary is seen as Dorothy Mackall's rival, the screen version of Eleanor Mercein's novel, "Basquerie," Warner Baxter and Dorothy Mackall are costarred in this Fox offering, and the cast includes ZaSu Pitts, Nance O'Neill and Lawrence Grant.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Lucien Littlefield, who is to the talk- ing films what Chic Sale is to the stage—a comedy character specialist, has an important role in George Bancroft's newest Paramount film, "Scandal Sheet," now showing at the Columbia Theatre.

Littlefield plays the part of the night city editor on the tabloid daily over which Bancroft wields his terrorizing power as the ruthless managing editor. He is a nervous, trembling, scared news-dispenser, whereas Bancroft, his boss, is the epitome of brutality and fearlessness. Bancroft's code is "If it's news it's printed, no matter whom it may hurt." Littlefield is obliged to further this creed, whether he likes it or not. After a series of thrilling episodes Bancroft falls a victim of his own precepts.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

The most notable event in the history of cinematograph entertainment in England was the gala performance given in honor of the Prime Minister of Great Britain, the Dominion premiers and the delegates to the Imperial Conference. "Plunder," the British and Dominion picture, now showing at the Columbia Theatre, was one of the two big pictures presented to the most distinguished gathering at a cinema function. Ramsay MacDonald, addressing the audience, said he had never seen better pictures. "Plunder" is acted by the famous Aldwych cast which for years has delighted thousands of London audiences, and the combination of Ralph Lynn and Tom Walls, with Mary Brough, provides a rich feast of merriment.

Marie Dressler And Polly Moran Coming

Fifteen speeches in a day—and still going strong!

That was the record Marie Dressler set when she ran for office in "Politics," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring picture coming to the Dominion Theatre on Saturday.

Miss Dressler made a long speech— exhorting the women's vote to get out and clean up the town. Counting rehearsals, close-ups, long shots and so on, she did it fifteen times.

Of course, it was always the same

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG (By Logan & Bryan)
CHICAGO (By Logan & Bryan)

Winnipeg, Aug. 26.—Wheat took a firmer tone today with prices generally working higher, until they were 1 1/2 to 2 cents above the previous close. The market was a very light affair with offerings extremely light, while there was scattered small buying for seaboard export.

There was very little export business worked out of this market overnight, but seaboard reported a fair business in Manitoba and hard winter. There were some fair sized bids in this market just under Tuesday's closing figures from New York exporters, but the market did not decline and the business was not worked. It is possible that these bids may be renewed to-morrow at a higher level.

Argentine wheat seedling has now been completed and an official estimate of the acreage shows a reduction of slightly over 20 per cent from last year. Unsettled weather in Germany is delaying developments in that country. As recent reports indicate crop damage has been considerable.

The local cash market was again quiet to-day with only small lots changing hands at unchanged prices. There is no pressure from offerings. New York finally estimated wheat sales at 500,000 bushels Manitoba and winter. Believe the market favors the buyer and advice purchases at low recessions. Coarse grains: These markets were all stronger and were taking their lead from wheat and corn. For the first time in a long period there was a good foreign inquiry for rye with some business being worked.

Oats closed 1/2 to 1/4 higher. Barley closed 1/2 to 1/4 higher. Rye closed 1/2 to 1/4 higher.

C.P.R. HOLDS INTEREST IN STOCK LOWEST IN 33 YEARS; FEAR NEW CUTS

Canadian Press
Toronto, Aug. 26.—Toronto Stock Exchange continued to slide along today with price changes again within narrow limits and highly irregular. C.P.R. was traded at the lowest price for the past thirty-three years, with the quotation of 20 1/2, a low of 19 1/2. Smelters recovered a point to 95 and Canadian Pacific was slightly easier. Imperial and International Petroleum recorded gains of small fractions, but British American and McColl Frontenac were unchanged.

International Nickel was up 1/4 and Ford and Walker about the same. C.P.R. WAGE AND DIVIDEND CUT FEARED
Montreal, Aug. 26.—After breaking to a new low at 20 1/2 to-day, Canadian Pacific Railway stock ended the day at 20 1/2, unchanged from yesterday. Weakness in the stock has been caused by the heavy drop in earnings, and the published reports that employees' wages may be cut another 10 per cent, and with a further slash in the already halved dividend. C.P.R. earnings for the third week of August were reported at $2,546,000, or $1.115 per share, against $2,071,000 for the same week of last year. This represents a drop of $2,024,000, compared with the same period of last year.

An important news item, however, was apparent among the other leading issues of the Montreal Stock Exchange during the late trading to-day. Price movements were within a narrow range. Fractional advances were registered by Canadian Pacific, Southern Canada Power, McColl Frontenac and Quebec Power.

Bank of Montreal was off nine points to 248. Royal Bank was off 1/4 at 237 1/2. Montreal Power unchanged at 47. MINING CORPORATION REPORTS
NEW YORK
Toronto, Aug. 26.—Prices showed a definite upward tendency on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange to-day. Losses ranged from a fraction to 10 cents.

Corporation formed on reports that vein had been opened on the Davidson property, moving up 10 cents, and Wright-Margrave added seven. Canadian Southern, Dome, and 10 and Tuck-Hughes and El Dorado lost around 5 apiece. Noranda lost, while other base metals were in the discard.

Bears Take Fright, And Race To Cover Shoots Stocks Up

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The stock market's ability to hold virtually stationary in the face of rather gloomy mid-week business statistics, was regarded as a warning by the bears to-day, and they hurried to cover their short commitments in the last hour, with the result the industrial averages closed up over 3 points.

After fluttering dully in an extremely narrow trading range during the earlier hours of the session, the market came up strongly in the final dealings. Improvement in the commodity markets was helpful.

New York, Aug. 26.—The stock market's ability to hold virtually stationary in the face of rather gloomy mid-week business statistics, was regarded as a warning by the bears to-day, and they hurried to cover their short commitments in the last hour, with the result the industrial averages closed up over 3 points.

After fluttering dully in an extremely narrow trading range during the earlier hours of the session, the market came up strongly in the final dealings. Improvement in the commodity markets was helpful.

MOUNTING TARIFFS BLAMED FOR STALLING WORLD TRADE AND LOWERING WAGE RATES

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 26.—An attack on American tariff policy as being responsible for stalling the trade of the world was linked at the session of the Institute of Politics with criticism of the political character of the tariff commission. The declaration was made that the first year's experience with the 1930 flexible tariff provision had confirmed previous forecasts that this machinery would not soften the harsh effects of the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act.

So long as commodity prices continued downward and the world depression continued, tariff walls, it was said, would climb higher and higher. The belief was expressed that this would mean lowering of wage rates, sooner or later, with a possible outcome that labor and capitalists groups in each country would enter into "sinister combinations" for higher tariffs to protect themselves against the entrance of goods from other countries.

ASSAULTS FLEXIBLE PROVISION
Professor Jacob Viner of the University of Chicago, consulting expert for the tariff commission from 1918 to 1929, spoke in disparaging terms of the "flexible" provision of the 1930 tariff act. He said that the tariff commission had made that the first year's experience with the 1930 flexible tariff provision had confirmed previous forecasts that this machinery would not soften the harsh effects of the Hawley-Smoot Tariff Act.

Heart of Liane
by MABEL McELLIOTT

He took Liane's hand. She was trembling now, with anxiety and excitement. When she had rushed off into the stony night at Van Robard's side she had completely forgotten the promise given her mother not twenty-four hours ago. What was it she had said? Oh yes, I'll cut dead if I pass him on the road. Well, those had been light, wild words, lightly spoken. Because, of course, she could not treat this handsome man so cavalierly. She found a strange, deep attraction in his looks, his low-toned queries, the pressure of his brown hand. When he had asked her to go with him, to hunt for Muriel Ladd, she had gone as unhesitatingly as a child might have. Villain he might be but he showed no cloven hooves to her.

However, now it was well past midnight and her mother probably lay shivering with dread, waiting for news of her.

"I was a wretch to drag you off that way," Robard said contritely, settling her in the car. "But I was sure Muriel had stopped to see you, probably had confided her plans. I couldn't think what else to do."

"It's all right," Liane said unconcernedly. She knew it wasn't all right but it did no harm to reassure him. The big car bowed smoothly along. Now they were in the side road, now Mrs. Smithers' little white house hurried in the dimness ahead.

"I'll wait till you're safely in," he said, helping her out. "Have you a key?"

Liane glanced apprehensively toward the darkened windows. Odd that mother's light was not burning. The whole house was apparently asleep, blanketed in the hush of country stillness.

"Tell me," she whispered softly, impelled by who knows what inner urgency. "How did you know my name that night at the theatre in town—the first time I saw you?"

She felt a strong arm go around her suddenly. Liane put up her two slim brown young hands to ward him off. He let her go as suddenly as he had touched her but not before her fingers had felt the strong heat of him beating under that rough tweed coat.

"Don't be afraid," he said softly. "You're such an infant." She could not see his face now, only the glimmer of those humorous deep-set eyes. "I knew your name because I had asked Mrs. Cleespaugh the day before as we drove past you on the street. You were coming out of the theatre with another girl. You stopped to see a woman, didn't you?"

"There's no mystery about it, then," Liane drew suddenly feeling rather foolish.

"None at all," Mrs. Cleespaugh's sort of cousin of mine. She was telling me about this theatre venture and I was driving her down to see Vernon. That's all. I thought—no, a work tell you what I thought when I saw you."

Liane felt a little pulse throbbing and pounding in her throat. "Do tell me," she pleaded. "I can't sleep to-night until I know."

She turned her face to him in the darkness, like a flower all fragrance and delight. The man started back at her a full moment before he replied. When he spoke his voice was roughened with feeling. "I thought," he began haltingly, "that you were the rarest thing I had seen in many a moon. I thought you looked like something infinitely desirable, infinitely to be loved. I thought all sorts of strange, old-fashioned, knightly thoughts. Like wanting to own a glove you had worn or a rose you had thrown away. I thought—but why go on? The night wanes and an anxious parent waits you above."

"Those are the loveliest words anyone has ever said to me," said Liane. Forgotten now was her promise. There was strange sweet magic in this man's voice, in his touch, in the way he looked at her. Some alchemy she did not understand worked in her brain.

"Go now," the man said, almost roughly. "And bless you."

He ran down the steps. Liane heard the sound of his motor car purring outside the gate before she could bring herself to creep upstairs. A white figure stood at the door of his room. "Sh-sh!" murmured Liane. "You're in luck because I did a little plain and fancy lying for you. Said Muriel had gone home. Sir Colubard told her to go home and stay the night with her. Case went to bed and to sleep instantly. Luck for you."

"Thank a lot," Liane whispered. "I'll tell you all about it to-morrow. What shall I do? I hate going in now and waking her up."

"Bunk on the couch in my room," said Liane scornfully. "That boy knows his way about. I can tell you."

"I don't believe it," said Liane. "I simply don't believe it."

"Elsie examined her face in the dim light cast by one small bulb. 'Well, kid, you don't need to take it from me. You can read the tabloids,' she said, with a yawn."

"She's old enough to be his mother," Liane pouted.

"Not quite," returned Elsie. "Matter of ten years or so between them. That's nothing."

"Don't go falling for that baby," Elsie advised, clambering into bed. "He's the lawyer's delight. Been co-responsible times in the five years. That's handsome for you."

Liane feigned sleep. A sickness and misery tugging at her heart. If Van Robard were bad when the world was bad, she couldn't endure the thought. No one could look as Van did and be really bad. The nuns had taught her that character is mirrored in the face. Van didn't look wicked or depraved. How could that Elsie said be true?

Liane tossed and turned. The moonlight was a torture. She reviewed every word which had passed between Adele Ladd and the man who searched whole-hearted for Muriel. Her fevered fancy admitted that Adele seemed to have the right to order Van around. Why?

Anguished, Liane imagined Adele Ladd laughing at her. What was it she would say to Van when next she saw him? Oh, something like, 'Who's your shabby little friend? She's not much help in a crisis.' Clenching her hands, tears on her cheeks, at last Liane slept.

CHAPTER VII

Muriel Ladd sat up in bed at the St. Wilbraham. She pulled the silken coverlet over one bare shoulder, yawned and reached for the telephone. "Willow Stream 012," she said sleepily. Then after a long pause, "Grimes? This is Muriel. Father home? Oh, mother? Yes, put me on her wire."

She made a naughty face at her charming reflection in the mirror. "When? When did you get back? Oh, for Pete's sake stop howling or I can't tell you a thing. At the St. Wilbraham, of course. Where do you suppose I stay when I come to town? Well, you can ring back the desk if you like when I finish and ask the clerk when I checked in." Long pause.

"Yes, I admit I did go dancing with him. What's all the shooting for? We went to the Club Royal and I got in at three. Don't be so steamed up. You thought I'd eloped? Darling, how I wish you were right. The young man's too cagey. I put the car in a garage. Well, I didn't want to drive back that late. Oh, you give me a double distilled pain!"

On this final note Muriel slammed up the receiver. In a minute the bell shrilled again and she answered the summons with a bored air.

"What? Of course I've got daytime clothes. I stopped and took a bag with me. Too bad you haven't got something real sorry."

She dropped the coverlet and ran for the bathroom where, amidst gold-plated spigots and mammoth bath towels monogrammed with the initials of the Wilbrahams, she proceeded to turn on the hot water until the mirror and window filmed over with steam.

Muriel warbled "I love you so much. It's a wonder you don't feel it," as she laid out sheer, citron-colored underthings and sitting half a bottle of rose geranium salts into the boiling tub. Five minutes later she emerged in her citron-colored shift, rose, stockings. Thus casually attired, she sought the phone again. This time she called a Beckman number.

"Editorial department? Mr. Desmond in yet? Well, would you mind giving me his home number? It's personal. 'Course I is. Did you mean all and here her voice became velvet-textured, 'but this is frightfully important. Oh, thanks awfully. So sweet of you. She smiled at the unseen speaker at the other end of the wire."

Muriel asked the Wilbraham operator to call Spring 0049 for her and got into her black and white sports suit as she waited. "Darling," she cooed into the mouthpiece. "Don't be cross because I waked you. I just wanted to say good morning. Am I a lamb? 'Course I is. Did you mean all you said last night? Don't forget! Just had a slight bout with Mother who barged home about eleven and tore up the scenery when Grimes told her I was flitting with you. She's purple but she'll get over it. She thought to find me plastered all over the front pages, and she disappointed! Well, never mind. Yes, Thursday. Lamb! She made a sibilant sound and hung up the receiver with an air of extreme reluctance."

"Why do you say that?" Liane demanded.

"Why, he's that way about Adele Ladd. Everyone in town knows that," said Elsie scornfully. "That boy knows his way about. I can tell you."

"I don't believe it," said Liane. "I simply don't believe it."

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Funny Tires

BY HOWARD R. GARIS

"Where do you think he went, Twisty?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he stood near his auto without the bologna sausage tires and looked off into the woods.

"I wish I could tell you, but I can't," answered the pig gentleman, who was very fat and jolly. "He said he knew how to get tires back on your stalled car and then he said he had a grand, wonderful idea and away he ran into the woods."

"He told us to wait for him, so I suppose we better had," spoke Uncle Wiggily. "Anyhow, we can't travel on our adventure trip with no tires to my car, so I guess we'll just have to wait until the poor tramp dog comes back!"

"Yes," agreed the fat pig. "I guess so. And while I'm waiting I'll sit on this stump."

"I'll sit in the car and watch our trunks so that none of the Bad Chaps can sneak inside," said Uncle Wiggily. He and his pig friend, taking their trunks, had set off on an adventure journey in Uncle Wiggily's auto a little while before this. The auto had fat bologna sausages for tires. But Mr. Longears and the pig got out of the car for a moment and when they came back all the tires had been eaten off by a poor, hungry tramp dog. The dog was very sorry when he found he had eaten Uncle Wiggily's auto tires and offered to get new ones. He could fix the car so it could run again.

"Twined one on each wheel."

As Mr. Twistytail and Uncle Wiggily resumed just now, the dog had taken off into the woods telling the two friends to wait until he came back.

"Maybe he'll bring you a new car, Wiggily," said the pig.

"I don't see how a poor old dog, so hungry that he has to eat my bologna sausage tires, is going to buy me a new car," said the rabbit. "There must be some other trick to it."

"Well, I wish he'd hurry back and do something," grunted the pig. "I want to have some adventures on this journey."

"I think we are having some adventures," chuckled Mr. Longears. "First we had to wait over a day on account of the rain. Then the Fox hid in my trunk. Or was it the Bob Cat or the Wolf?"

"One of 'em, anyhow," grunted the pig.

"Then, when we did start," went on the rabbit, "the poor dog ate my tires and now we are wondering what he is going to do to make up for being so hungry and keeping us here. Adventures, I call 'em!"

"Well, perhaps you are right!" grunted the pig gentleman. "But we shall soon know what the poor dog is going to do to help us, for here he comes now."

"Good!" cried Uncle Wiggily, pink-liver his nose until it was pink in color, twink being a sort of rosy red. "But look!" cried the rabbit uncle. "The poor dog is being chased. See how he runs!"

"Yes, and how he turns, every now and then, to look behind him!" exclaimed the pig. "Yes, surely some of the Bad Chaps are chasing him."

"And yet," went on Uncle Wiggily, standing on the seat of his car, "I can see neither the Fox, the Wolf nor the Bob Cat, nor that silly little tail, after the poor dog."

"I see what's chasing him!" suddenly grunted the pig.

"Snakes!" cried the pig.

"Snakes!" shouted Uncle Wiggily. "No, never!"

"Yes! Right now!" said the pig. "I see a pink snake, a blue snake, a red snake, a purple snake and a green snake twisting along after the poor dog."

"Oh, this is too bad! Too bad!" said Uncle Wiggily. "If those snakes catch the poor dog they'll squeeze him hard. But when the poor dog, who had eaten the bologna sausages, came running up to Uncle Wiggily's car he did not seem to be afraid of the twisting snakes close behind him. The dog laughed and said:

"I have brought you these snakes, Uncle Wiggily, to be tires for your car in place of the bologna sausages ones I ate. These jolly old snakes are round and fat as rubber balls. Each one will twine itself around one of your wheels and be a balloon tire. The fifth snake will be the spare. They are friends of mine. I knew where they lived in the woods so I went to get them. Now you can travel on."

"Well," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "If I travel on it will be with the funniest auto tires I ever had. Are you sure you don't mind?" he asked the snake.

Shall Parents Plan Children's Marriages?

Dorothy Dix

Thinks Children Should Make Own Mistakes

Doubtless Parents Could Select for Their Children Better Husbands and Wives Than They Often Select Themselves, but the Ratio of Successful Marriages Would Not Be Increased Thereby

JUST how far parents are justified in interfering in their children's marriages is a matter of controversy between the two generations that will never be settled. Of course, it is perfectly natural for fathers and mothers to believe that they can make a far better choice of a husband or a wife for their children than their children can for themselves. They feel that their wisdom, their experience, their knowledge of life, even their disillusion with matrimony itself, fits them to make a better selection of a suitable lifemate for their son and daughter than the young and ignorant boy and girl could make for themselves.

In particular, they feel that they can bring a calm, cool judgment to bear on the matter, for they will not be carried away by any glamour of fleeting physical attraction. They will not be influenced by the fact that a chap is tall and slim and has a way with him. Nor will a girl's complexion and her cuteness convince them that she is the heaven-sent mate for their John.

No. The lure of beauty, the ability to do the latest dance step and a keen conversational line would cut no ice with them. They would get right down to fundamentals, and in picking out Mary's husband they would select a man because of his high moral character, his ability to make a good living and his generally quiet, staid demeanor.

The type of husband, you know, that can be guaranteed to give his wife good clothes, a car and trips to Europe and to stand without being hitched. Likewise they would select for John a girl who had a bit of money of her own, who belonged to their own social set, who knew how to cook and get the most out of a dollar and whose mind was set on higher things than imported frocks and contract bridge.

And you needn't tell mother and father that if John and Mary would go along and marry the nice, sensible, suitable young woman and man they have picked out for them that they wouldn't be happier than they will be with the silly girl and boy they have selected for themselves.

But John and Mary reply that, inasmuch as it is ordained that they, and not father and mother, are going to have to live with the ones they marry, they are the ones to be pleased. Furthermore, that tastes differ and that they do not care any more for mother's and father's taste in husbands and wives than they do for their taste in clothes and amusements. Also, that as happiness in marriage consists in getting what you want, instead of what you probably should have, they prefer to do their own picking.

All of which is undeniably true on both sides of the question. Doubtless, parents could select for their children better husbands and wives than they often select for themselves, but the ratio of successful marriages would not be increased thereby, nor would divorces decrease, for so contrary is human nature that we cannot love to order those whom we should love, nor find inspiring companionship in the society of the elect.

Just what it is that fires a girl's fancy in some hopeless detrimental and makes poverty and struggle and even heartache more worth while with him than riches and a placid existence would be with another man, she doesn't know. It just happens that way.

Just what it is in some foolish, frivolous girl, who never learns to keep house and who always keeps her husband's nose on the grindstone, that makes her the most precious thing in the world to him and fills his days with romance while he would be bored stiff with a domestic woman who was a real help-mate, a man can never figure out even to himself. It just is.

Then, too, parents forget that the faults that they find so objectionable in a girl or a boy their children may not even perceive, for the young and the old do not look at things from the same standpoint. Especially is this true now when the present generation accept as commonplace many of the things that their fathers and mothers regard as criminal breaches of manners and morals.

The old bugaboos of parents, that of having their children marry out of their class or marry out of their religion or marry a poor man or a frivolous girl, mean absolutely nothing to the young, who have seen the turn of the wheel that carried aristocrats to the bottom and brought profiteers to the top of the ladder; who have achieved the broader religious belief of to-day; who know how to make their own living and do not have to marry for it, and who know that the flapper's flapper often turns into the most domestic of wives.

All of this makes it more and more impossible for parents to decide what sort of wives and husbands will really suit their children. Probably they never did know, for in the few cases where mothers and fathers succeeded in forcing their children to marry their choice there have been many disasters.

We have all seen the rich old man that mother forced on Mamie lose his money and have beheld her bankrupt in heart as well as in purse and we have known many Johns who soiled themselves with philandering on the side as a recompense for the dull, homely heiress that father had foisted upon them as a wife.

So, since nobody can tell beforehand how any marriage will turn out, parents had best keep their hands off and let their children, at least, have the fun of making their own mistakes.

Into the Depths of Space

WINGS

Paul's statement was indeed true. Every person on the planet was gifted with two faces—two noses, two pairs of eyes, two mouths. They could see behind them as well as in front of them, and Paul thought that was a very good idea.

"My, but it's fun!" cried Marlene.

The leader of the strange people could not make the visitors from earth understand his words, but by means of signs he showed them that he wanted them to follow him.

In a little space they came to the side of a beautiful lake, and thousands were there to greet them, shouting in excitement as the visitors arrived. Much time passed before the people of earth could understand the words of the people on the planet; but at length enough was learned to carry on a conversation. The name of the planet was found to be "Pala." The leader of the crowd had said, "Terena sala Pala," meaning "Welcome to Pala." The natives called themselves "Palames."

Every help and token of friendship was given to the Rocket Folk. They received food and shelter, and were shown the sights of the region—all mountains, beautiful waterfalls, strange birds and trees. The leader who had first spoken to them was called "Weedee," and served as their principal guide.

One day he paid a visit to Dr. Dawson, and said, "Would you like to put on a pair of wings and test our method of flying?"

"I shall be glad to do so," replied the doctor. "Will you provide wings for the boy and girl as well? The rest of the party is out on a visit to your great canyon."

"Certainly," replied Weedee. Each of the trio was given a pair of wings, the power to move the same being contained in a small motor supported by a crosspiece.

"When you want to start," said Weedee, "press this button. When you want to go faster, press this button. When you want to come to the ground, press this button."

In a few moments they were in the air, flying about with the ease and freedom of birds.

"My, but it's fun!" cried Marlene. "I'll tell the world!" shouted Paul.

LABOR UNIONS IN BRITAIN OPPOSE NEW MINISTRY

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Aug. 26.—Evidence continued to accumulate to-day that the official opposition in the Commons, when it meets next month, will receive substantial support from organized industrialism throughout the country in waging war against the new government's proposals for enforcing economy. Belligerent pronouncements and resolutions from labor councils and kindred bodies are pouring into London with a haste which may perhaps be deemed to discount their true face value. A pungent criticism issued last week by the Manchester Trades and Labor Council, representing 100,000 workers, of the report of the May committee, which may be taken as the basis of the economy programme, has been followed by a statement that labor as a political force is pledged to maintain and even extend the widespread social services, which include unemployment insurance and the dole. "Notwithstanding this," said the spokesman of the Manchester body yesterday, "a section of the government has given way to the pressure of the bankers, the Federation of British Industries and the National Employers' Council."

The Lancashire Independent Labor Council declares: "The Labor government was stamped by bankers and financiers following a virulent campaign by big business under the specious plea of economy."

BRANCH FACTORIES

Montreal, Aug. 26.—Six large industrial firms of the British Isles are seriously considering the establishing of branch factories in the Dominion during the coming year. P. W. Field, British Trade Commissioner, told members of a service club here yesterday during an address on the industrial situation in Great Britain.

BISHOP FIGHTS U.S. INQUIRY

Washington, Aug. 26.—C. Babescom Slomp, Republican leader in Virginia, testified yesterday before senate campaign funds committee he brought about a meeting in 1928 between Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and E. C. Jameson, the New York financier, who gave more than $70,000 to the churchman for use in the anti-Smith campaign in Virginia.

Washington, Aug. 26.—Bishop James Cannon Jr. charged in a cable from London yesterday that the senate's inquiry into his 1928 anti-Smith campaign activities was a "purely personal attack by a vindictive Virginia Democrat and a Boston congressman under Roman Catholic domination" and not an attempt to frame remedial legislation.

COACH LINES GET CONTRACT FROM SAANICH

School Board Cuts $2,000 From Annual Transportation Cost

Transportation of 300 children to and from the graded schools of Saanich will next year cost a maximum of $6,250, or $625 monthly. The school board yesterday evening accepted the tender of the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Limited for five services, the cost being $2,000 below last year because of lessened requirements, the basis of the charge being unchanged.

The routes to be served, and the monthly cost for each, are as follows: From Cordova Bay to Royal Oak School, serving about forty-five children, $230;

From Cadboro Bay to Cedar Hill School, serving thirty-six children, $125;

Through Central Saanich from Brookleigh and Giles Roads to Prospect Lake School, daily attendance about twenty-six children, $100;

From Talmis School to Lake Hill School, an average of sixty children, $100;

From Thetis Lake Road to Craigflower School, transporting thirty-three children, $70.

The contract will be for ten months, from September 1, and the price quoted includes insurance to a minimum amount of $20,000.

MOSCOW PAPERS SEE WIDER CLASS TILT IN BRITAIN

Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 26.—Moscow newspapers yesterday devoted their leading articles to the resignation of the British Labor government, generally considering the "class character" of the British government unchanged by the new coalition.

The Izvestia said the MacDonald government was not a government of the worker class, despite its party label, but was supported in all its problems by "the imperialistic bourgeoisie."

The formation of the new government, the newspaper said, indicated the deepening economic crisis "holds grave consequences for the fate of British capitalism at a time when the British are forced to receive American and French loans to maintain the sterling rate."

"The British bourgeoisie class is collecting its forces to open a decisive attack against the workers and places at the head of the coalition the leader of a 'worker party,'" the Izvestia said.

"REAL FACE OF LABOR" The Pravda took a similar view, declaring a task of the new government under Prime Minister MacDonald would be "to open a further attack against the worker class in England, against wages and against social insurance, in order to make British industry once more able to compete at the expense of the proletariat."

"The open alliance of Ramsay MacDonald with David Lloyd George and Stanley Baldwin brings to light the real face of the Labor Party and helps the Communists to solve their problem," the Pravda said.

The newspaper said the task of the British Communist Party now would be to assume leadership of the working masses to unmask the bourgeois attack against the proletariat under the guise of national unity. "A great class struggle is going to take place in England," it said.

DEMOCRACY SAID TO BE ON TRIAL

Canadian Press

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 26.—Economic planning involves a choice between autocracy and democracy, Theodore E. Gregory, British economist and professor of banking in the London School of Economics, told the Institute of Politics yesterday in the general conference on the "Future of Democracy."

In discussing the possibilities of economic planning in modern democracies, the British economist held the Communist and Fascist systems with their centralized control were better suited to economic planning than democracy, and that the world "must make up its mind" whether democracy must be cast aside or whether it is worth saving.

He cited the present British financial crisis as an example of the failure of economic planning in democracy and said the "present crisis is the result of confusing democracy with social planning."

In an address yesterday evening on "Economic Problems of Present Day Germany," Dr. Herbert von Beckerath, professor of political science in the University of Bonn, suggested the union of German surplus labor with French and foreign capital in the economic development of French and other colonies as a means of contributing to reparations payments.
